Drought Watches, Warnings Have Farmers Concerned

ANDY ANDREWS

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Unusually hot, dry weather has prompted the state to issue drought watches and warnings, which has many farmers concerned.

For one thing, sources of water for cattle from springs, creeks, and shallow wells are drying up.

For another, harvest of corn silage has begun two to three weeks ahead of schedule. In some locations, harvest of high moisture corn is well under way.

For southcentral Pennsylvania, August was a record dry month. Out of the Middletown Airport, The National Weather Service in Harrisburg recorded only 0.53 inches of rain for August, the driest August ever. Other counties are well below normal for the month in precipitation, according to statistics compiled by the Mid-Atlantic River Forecast Center in Harrisburg.

Also, Lancaster is one of 43 counties placed under a drought warning as of Sept. 1 for the eastern portion of the state, including Potter, Cameron, Clearfield, Cambria, Blair, Huntingdon, Perry, Cumberland, and Adams counties. The remaining 24 counties in the west are under a drought watch.

Many townships have put in severe water restrictions. Lancaster, which officially recorded its driest August in 82 years, averaged only 0.8 inch of rain, down 2.9 inches from normal in August. The county may soon consider water rationing in some townships. Denver Borough announced a mandatory ban on nonessential water use Aug. 29. Ephrata Borough announced Tuesday it would comply with the state drought warning and join Denver in the water conservation effort, according to reports in the Ephrata Review. West Earl and other townships in the county have similar restrictions in place. Other counties in the eastern part of the state have put tight restrictions on general water use.

Pennsylvania Dairy Industry Unites On Farm Policy

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — For what could possibly be the first time, the dairy industry of Pennsylvania has united in its position on 12 major provisions of a dairy proposal for the next farm bill.

The Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, Pennsylvania State Grange, Pennsylvania Farmers Union, Dairylea Cooperative, Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, Milk Marketing Inc. cooperative and the Pennsylvania Association of Milk Dealers have all reached a consensus on 12 provisions of a dairy proposal offered by Congressman Steve Gunderson (R-Wisc.). Rep. Gunderson chairs the U.S. House Agriculture Subcommittee on Dairy, Livestock and Poultry. While details of his dairy proposal have been released, no legislation has been introduced as yet.

The group has sent an open letter to Pennsylvania's congressional delegation outlining the 12 points of Rep. Gunderson's dairy proposal on which a consensus has been reached. While there is a general consensus on a number of other portions of the proposal, agreement was not unanimous.

"It could come as a great shock to some people that the dairy industry of Pennsylvania can unify on any portion of a farm bill proposal," commented Pennsylvania Farm Bureau president Keith Eckel. "But a consensus on 12 points of Gunderson's proposal was indeed reached at a meeting of Pennsylvania farm groups, dairy

National Grain Market

ST. JOSEPH, MO
SEPTEMBER 06, 1995

Export optimism and concerns over tight world wheat stocks pushed wheat bids higher, today. Corn and soybean bids continued to decline due to profit taking and improved growing weather. Wheat mostly 4 to 7 cents higher. Corn 2 to 6 cents lower. Sorghum 3 to 5 cents lower. Soybeans mostly steady to 4 cents lower. Wheat bids were mixed but mostly higher as tight world wheat stocks continue to stir concerns. Wheat harvest continued slow as rains remain in northern plains forecasts and concerns over crop quality offered strength to bids. Overnight export demand continued slow, however, indications that Pakistan, Morocco, Tunisia and Egypt are seeking US wheat offered support to wheat bids. Fund buying was also a support factor. Export demand for corn and beans were good with Taiwan and China back in the market. However, bids finished lower as profit taking on the board weakened bids. Rains in the Midwest and cooler temperatures improved growing conditions and early corn harvest is picking up in some areas.

Our Building Lease may be the best way to build your farm or commercial building.

Whether your new farm or commercial building is of pole, timber column, stud, steel or block construction; choose Telmark lease financing.

Telmark has been leasing equipment for over 30 years. Did you know that we've been leasing new buildings for that long too? Consider the features:

- Low upfront costs: Beginning costs may be as little as one monthly lease payment.
- Flexible lease term: Building lease terms start aggressively at five years but may be as long as ten, twelve, or fifteen years.
- Customized payment schedules: Lease payment schedules match your cash flow. Payment options include monthly, quarterly, annually, as well as, skip or specially designed seasonal payments.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

SEPTEMBER 11-17, 1995

CITIZENSHIP DAY, SEPT. 17.

PASSING MUSTER

Mustering in" on "training day" was once a common local holiday for the drilling of militia. Soldiers "mustered" in their splendor of muskets and bright uniforms, the drum majors practiced their disciplines, while the spectators enjoyed a picnic. Peddlars' carts ringed the area, booths were erected, gingerbread and candy were sold, and the taverns did a heavy afternoon business. At the close of the drills, the guns were fired off and it soon became clear which horses were still green. Bugles and drums once again called the soldiers to a final parade for the citizens, who showed their proper deference.

"Enough good looks to make her pass muster . . ."

— William Thackeray (1855)

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ American flags, when soiled, can be successfully washed in lukewarm suds. Rinse well, don't wring, and let drip dry.

HERB STUFFED POTATOES

4 large baking potatoes
1/3 cup milk or cream
4 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon each chopped, fresh: chives, chervil, and thyme or marjoram
1 teaspoon salt

Bake the potatoes, slice lengthwise, and scoop out. Mash the potatoes with the milk, butter, herbs, and salt. Refill the skins and broil just long enough to brown.

Makes 4 servings.

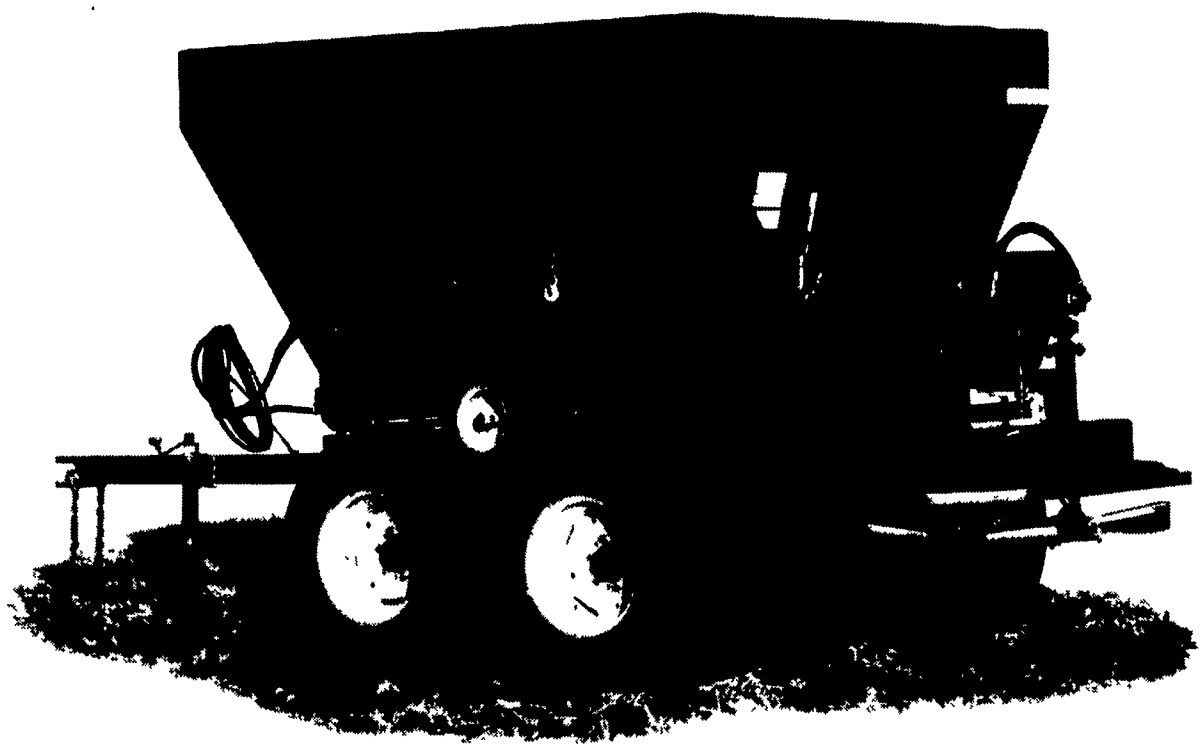
The One Spreader Rugged Enough For Lime, Precise Enough For Fertilizer.



You know how tough it is to spread wet lime. And fertilizer is too expensive to waste. Our new 56i spreader does both jobs with ease. Plus, it has no equal when it comes to spreading "sloppy" material.

Stoltzfus Spreaders have been known as unique, "top-of-the-line" ag spreaders since 1947.

Farmers are still using Stoltzfus Spreaders they've had 20 years or more. That means your investment in a versatile Stoltzfus Spreader will add up to a very smart buy indeed.

OPINION

Education Across The Rural/City Fence Row

Food and fiber production requires 20 percent of the work force to accomplish the monumental task to feed the nation. These people are involved in plant and animal science, food production, supply, processing, transportation, finance, economics, marketing, leadership, community, public policy, regulation, human nutrition, recreation, trade, environmental stewardship, natural resource conservation, and education. Who says farmers don't have influence on public and social policy?

Within the next 35 to 40 years, world demand for food will double. The leverage future oipportunities and meet responsibilities associated with increased population and purchasing power in developing countries, our nation needs a highly-talented cadre of professionals, technicians, and skilled workers in the food system.

That's why we think the new project of The National Council for Agricultural Education (The Council) is so important. This program is called "Reinventing Agricultural Education for the Year 2020, and will be a collaborative, grassroots activity to help redefine, broaden and strengthen agricultural education at local, state, regional , and national levels. The program will begin immediately and conclude in 1998.

The W. KI. Kellogg Foundation, Battle Creek, Mich., has provided a three-year, $1.49 million grant to help fund this initiative as a special project of the National FFA Foundation. The idea behind this program is that agricultural education is the key to create and sustain healthy rural and urban economies, and that it can play an important role in the national education reform movement.

We agree. But we hope the idea is also expanded to include education in the city school system. Not only could this help prepare city youth for the many jobs that will be available in the agriculture/food system, the information gap between farm and city could be effectively filled also. Agricultural education needs to be reinvented on both sides of the rural/city fence row.

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Control Coccidiosis In Calves

Coccidia organisms may severely impair the health and vigor of calves starting at a very young age according to Glenn Shirk, extension dairy agent.

Coccidia oocysts can survive six months or more in the soil and in the fecal material. Thus, reinfections are a continual threat to young cattle. The organism may be killed by extreme temperatures and by prolonged exposure to hot, dry, sunny conditions. Therefore, it is no surprise that coccidosis is more of a problem during periods when cool, wet, sloppy conditions prevail.

Moving calf hutches to new locations that have been exposed to sunny conditions may help reduce the risk. Calves may be exposed to coccidia organisms soon after birth and for months thereafter. Calves raised in close confinement and calves under stress are at greatest risk. Thus, it is recommended that calves be fed a coccidiostat in their milk replacer and in their calf starter.

Coccidial compounds should be fed until cattle weigh about 800 pounds. Coccidosis is not a problem in all herds. For more advice on coccidiosis, consult your veterinarian.

To Select Top Rams

According to Chester Hughes, extension livestock agent, the majority of the genetic improvement in a sheep flock results from proper ram selection. Selection of the ram starts with establishing a set of goals and outlining the performance criteria necessary to meet those goals. Purchases should be made from breeders or ram testing stations that provide appropriate performance data. Records are essential, including immunization status, herd health management and medical history.

Fertility evaluation (testicular size and spermatozoa quality) should be part of the selection criteria. Spermatozoa output is directly related to testicular size and weight, which in turn is correlated with body condition. In ram lambs, testicular growth correlates with body growth and levels off at maturity.

The minimum scrotal circumference for a yearling ram (12-18 months) should be 33-34 cm. and 30-31 cm. for a ram lamb (6-9 months). The semen should have a minimum of 30 percent progressively motile spermatozoa and 75 percent morphologically normal spermatozoa and no white blood cells. A complete breeding soundness evaluation includes a thorough physical and conformational examination plus a negative ELISA test for B. ovis within 30 days of purchase.

Purchased animals, regardless of the source, should be isolated for an observation period of 30 days prior to introduction into the flock.

To Provide Cows With Water

Cows need easy access to an abundant supply of good quality water close to feed. Notice the emphasis on easy access, abundant supply, good quality and close to feed.

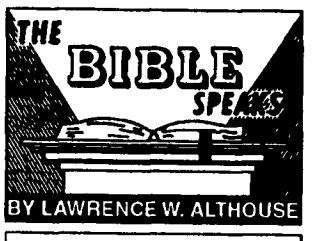
Glenn Shirk, extension dairy agent, states our goals are to maximize water and dry matter intakes. If water is close to the feeding area, cows are more apt to consume more dry matter.

Are you providing enough waterers and drinking area for the herd? A good indication is whether or not cows have to stand in line for a drink. Are pipe sizes and water pressure great enough? Are water valves of a design that provides generous flow rates? Are the water bowls and valves designed and located in a manner that is easy for cows to operate? In other words, do they encourage or discourage usage?

Would drinking vats be more desirable? Do cow trainers and stray voltage problems hinder intakes? Are the watering devices kept clean? Is the water from the well, the stream or farm pond of good quality?

These are a few things to consider as you evaluate your water system and cows' water intakes.

Feather Prof.'s Footnote: "Excellence can be yours if you use the intensity of your disappointments to fuel your endeavor."



What Shall We Do?

WHAT SHALL WE DO?
September 10, 1995

Background Scripture:
Acts 2
Devotional Reading:
Acts 2:16-24

My wife went to a store yesterday and, when she got home, she found in the paper bag containing the things she had purchased a Christian tract.

It purported to outline and explain "God's Plan of Salvation." The author claimed to have discovered a system comprising the grace of God. It read pretty much like a corporation's organizational chart or a detailed legal document. The writer implied that, if the reader understood the tract, they also understood the grace of God.

This reminded me of the little girl who was busy with crayons and paper and, when her father asked what she was doing, replied, "I'm drawing a picture of God." "But no one knows what he looks like," the father protested. "They will when I'm finished," she snapped.

SURELY YOU KNOW!

Lots of us are sure we can cut through all the mystery and transcendence of God and serve Him up in a nice little system. But all these systems come from human minds rather than from God. They make simplistic what is beyond full human comprehension. Whenever we think that we have captured God in one of our human systems, we need to remember what God said to Job: "Where were you when I laid the foundation of the earth? Tell me if you have understanding. Who determined its measurements — surely you know!" (Job 38:4,5).

Yet, although we should never assume we have reduced God and His grace to a formula, neither should we make difficult and complex what is deceptively simple. In Acts 2, Peter preaches movingly at Pentecost. "Now when they heard this they were cut to the heart, and said to Peter and the rest of the Apostles, 'Brethren, what shall we do?' And Peter said to them, 'Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the forgiveness of your sins'" (2:37,38).

I wouldn't pretend that the length and breadth, height and depth of the grace of God can be reduced to a system, but the question of "What shall we do. . .?" can be answered, not with arrogance, but humility.

When we hear the Good News of Jesus Christ, most of us will be "cut to the heart" with a sense of our own moral failure. In a sense, the Good News starts with what may seem to be the Bad News — our need to repent. "What shall we do?" In simple language: "Repent. . ." To respond to God's Good News in Jesus Christ we need to acknowledge that we have not done what He wants or been what He has created us to be. We need to realize our need for His forgiveness. Nothing complicated about that.

A GIFT OF ALL

"Repent and be baptized. . ." Baptism symbolizes the grace of God that is poured out upon us when we acknowledge our need for him. It is the sign of our commitment to Him and His kingdom. It is a public avowal that we have received God's grace and what we intend to do about it. Nothing complicated about that either.

Now, we are ready and able to receive God's empowerment: ". . .and you shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit" (2:38). Lots of people would prefer to argue about the Holy Spirit than let it be channeled through their lives. But the Holy Spirit is not some rare gift to the few, but the common legacy of all who surrender themselves to God's grace. You don't have to understand an elaborate system in order for the Holy Spirit to be alive and well in your life.

"Brethren, what shall we do?" The answer is simple, but never simplistic: "Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the forgiveness of sins, and you shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit."

Md. Holstein Show Champion Is Canadian-Born

JOANNE E. MORVAY
Maryland Correspondent

TIMONIUM, Md.—A Canadian-born 4-year-old exhibited by Butch Harrison and Mike Iager was named grand champion Holstein here at the Maryland State Fair.

C. Mapleborough Revelat Kandy won the contest Monday afternoon at the annual fair in Timonium.

Iager, of Maple Lawn Farm in Fulton, and Harrison, of Dun Loafin Farm in Burkittsville, bought the cow from Jimmy Burdette of Windy Knoll View Farm in Mercersburg, Pa.

Kandy was sired by Lonsfarm Revelation. She was reserve grand champion at the Pennsylvania Spring Show and gave the supreme champion of the Maryland show a run for her money.

Steve White, judge of the Holstein show, easily placed Kandy at champion.

Bobby Griggs, lead judge of the supreme contest, called Kandy a great example of her breed with a "beautiful front end, foot and leg."

"She has a snug fore udder and you've gotta like the height and width of her rear udder," Griggs said.

Iager said he and Harrison expected Kandy to do well.

Normandell Farm Takes Banners

Tin-D Champ Dottie Donna Is Grand At District IV Parish Show

CAROLYN N. MOYER
Tioga Co. Correspondent

Judge Wayne Stiles, of Westminster, Md. commented that the cow not only had desirable type traits, but she also looked like she was working hard and producing a lot of milk.

His suspicions of her hard work were confirmed when his champion also won the protein production class held at the end of the show, with a 4-year-old record of 19,211 pounds of milk, 847 pounds of fat, and 736 pounds of protein.

In the reserve grand champion position was Nobledale Juno Wonder, a junior 3-year-old owned by Nobledale Farm, Gillett.

In the youth division, a pair of senior 3-year-olds took the top positions. Mark Norman of Liberty had the grand champion with Normandell Skyline Wanda, and Samantha Wilcox of Covington had the reserve grand champion with Eastmont Juno Debbie.

Ryan Sprout of Montrose was waved into the junior champion slot in both the open and junior divisions with his winter yearling, J Imperial Panda.

Following the winter yearling in the open division was Ty-Ly-View Juno Sylvia, a fall calf owned by Ty-Ly-View Farm.

Maryland Holstein Futurity Again Honors Schwartzbecks

JOANNE E. MORVAY
Maryland Correspondent

TIMONIUM, Md. — It was a "three-peat" for the Joseph Schwartzbeck Family of Union Bridge as their Peace and Plenty Farm won the Maryland Holstein Futurity for the third consecutive year.

Windy Knoll View Couns Peace and Plenty ET was chosen from 18 entries in this year's futurity, held Sunday night at the Maryland State Fair in Timonium.

Judge Steve White of New Castle, Ind. told the capacity crowd in the Cow Palace that the junior three-year-old had "more strength" than the other cows in the contest.

Her teats were "just like you'd like to place them" and Couns has "a beautiful, beautiful well-attached udder" and "such a good set of feet and legs," White said. The three-year-old's depth and "spring of step" were also noted by the internationally renowned judge, as were Couns' "dairy head and beautiful neck."

"You don't need any more fore udder and her rear udder is well attached," White said.

The crowd burst into applause as White laid the red flowered lei around Couns' neck.

No one could have been happier than leadsman Jimmy Burdette of Windy Knoll View Farm in Mercersburg, Pa.

Burdette is Nona Schwartzbeck's brother-in-law. She and Joe purchased Couns from Burdette as an embryo transfer. Couns was born March 2, 1992. Her sire was Carnation Counselor ET. Her dam was Ultimate Pala, dam of 18 junior All American nominated cows.

For Burdette, the taste of victory at the Maryland State Fair was sweet, though it didn't come easy.

Wearing the floral lei awarded to the cow following a session of family photos, Burdette said Couns was "hard to hang onto."

"But I enjoyed it to the fullest," he said.

The Schwartzbecks gave the credit for this year's win to Burdette and his well-bred cow.

Nona Schwartzbeck said the family was surprised by the victory.

"Last year's cow — people looked at her from all over the U.S., trying to buy her, so we knew she was going to be good."

Couns was one of three cows the Schwartzbecks entered in the 1995 Futurity. Their Peace and Plenty Justa Polly Sue was named second runner-up in the contest.

First runner-up was Coldsprings Jess Baden ET, exhibited by Marlin Hoff of Coldsprings Farm in New Windsor. Third runner-up was Lady's Manor Lady Lincoln, exhibited by Robert and Mary Smith of My Lady's Manor Farm in Monkton.

Nona Schwartzbeck and her son Gus said the family's three Futurity wins are due to nothing more

Md. Holstein Show

"She's developed into an extremely well balanced cow," Iager said. "She has a super udder and she's very dairy."

Iager and Harrision are showing Kandy under the Moniker Dun-Lawn Holsteins. They had three other cows at the state contest, including an aged cow that took second place in her class and a senior 3-year-old that also won second place.

Iager said Kandy is easy to work with which helps tremendously in the ring.

Kandy was named supreme champion at the recent Howard County Fair. "That was a big deal to us," Iager said.

He and Harrison plan to take Kandy to the All American Contests in Harrisburg and Louisville.

Premier breeder and exhibitor at the show was My Lady's Manor Farm in Monkton.

"We're really proud to have home-bred and home-raised cattle we can win with," Nona Schwartzbeck said.

It was hard to know how Couns would fare since the family bought her as an embryo. The family has two full sisters to Couns — both of whom were shown as junior calfs and junior yearlings. One won reserve All Maryland and the other was named All Maryland.

Couns, however, was never exhibited as a heifer.

She made up for that at the state fair — Couns was named intermediate champion and reserve grand champion of the Holstein show.

Nona Schwartzbeck said Couns and cows like her provide her family with an additional management and marketing tool.

"We are striving to survive so we can hand down our farm to our children and hopefully they can hand it down to their children," Schwartzbeck said.

The Schwartzbecks milk about 130 registered Holsteins and a few Brown Swiss with their son Gus and his wife Lisa and their children Austin, Aubrey, and Davis. Son Shane also helps on the farm.

Selling breeding stock is one way to make the struggle to stay in dairy a little easier, Nona Schwartzbeck said.

The Schwartzbecks received a stained glass-bordered mirror and $855 for their win.

Production awards at the futurity were as follows:

- Lady's Manor Lady Lincoln with 25,246 pounds of energy corrected milk led the contest. She is owned by Robert and Mary Smith of My Lady's Manor Farm in Monkton.
- Second highest production was Cranberry Meadows Leadman May, owned by Douglas E. Dell, with 23,972 pounds of milk. Dell is from Westminster.
- Third high production cow was Penn Gate Conquest Flossie with 22,501 pounds of milk. She is owned by Steve and Chris Wood and Robert Gitt of Penn Gate Farm in Littlestown, Pa.

Farmers Union Applauds Senate Farm Bill Proposal

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A sweeping set of farm policy initiatives designed as a blueprint for the 1995 Farm Bill is getting favorable reviews from the National Farmers Union (NFU). The proposal was announced by a group of Senate farm-state Democrats.

The plan has as its centerpiece a targeted marketing loan proposal being put forth by NFU, which proponents say would simplify farm programs, create income opportunities for farmers in the marketplace, and save billions of dollars in farm program spending.

"This is a sound and sensible alternative to the slash or burn and welfare-type programs that have been put on the table so far," said NFU President Leland Swenson.

The Senate proposal was announced by Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle of South Dakota and Sen. Bob Kerrey, D-Neb, Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, James Exon, D-Neb, Byron Dorgan, D-N.D., Kent Conrad, D-N.D., and Paul Wellstone, D-Minn.

NFU said the plan will simplify farm programs by replacing the current system of target prices, deficiency payments, crop-specific acreage bases, and triple-base with a two-tier marketing loan program targeted toward family-sized producers. It offers a flexible acreage base and a $50,000 limit on the amount of loan deficiency payments and marketing loan gains an individual farmer can receive in any one year.

Farmers Union began exploring the targeted marketing loan concept last year and is conducting an exhaustive analysis of the program's implications for farm income and federal cost savings. Swenson said early indications are that the program will boost farm income while saving money.

"By stimulating the prices farmers receive in the marketplace and giving them greater marketing options and planting flexibility, you allow producers to do what they've always wanted: receive higher real market income without having to depend on deficiency payments," said Swenson.

in Staunton, Va.; and Kitty Nicholes and Alice Grier of Winchester, Va.

Stiles led Mindy through the fair's Jersey show to her supreme champion win. It was the second supreme champion title for the senior 3-year-old in as many weeks. Mindy also won supreme at the recent Montgomery County (Md.) Fair.

Mindy was sired by Hoosier Valley Toptin. Her dam is Hill Acres Surville May. The syndicate purchased the cow at Pennsylvania's Golden Harvests Sale in 1993 for $7,200, Stiles said.

Last week's win was especially sweet for Virginia Associates — Mindy has had only one calf. She was fresh one year ago in July.

"For a cow to look this 'dairy' and attractive when she's been fresh 14 months — that's all the luck in the world," Stiles said.

Mindy was junior champion at the 1993 Jersey All American in Harrisburg. She placed first in intermediate class at the All American in Louisville.

Stiles said Mindy, who is large featured for a Jersey, is the biggest cow in the herd.

Stiles said he does not believe Mindy's size was the biggest factor in her winning supreme.

"She's an outstanding individual in her own right," Stiles said. "There's not a perfect cow, but there's very few items wrong with her."

Mike Iager, co-owner of the grand champion Holstein that showed against Mindy, said, "That Jersey is one of the best Jerseys of the breed."

Stiles said Mindy is "big and aggressive," but she's also great in the ring.

Virginia Associates plan to show Mindy at the All-American in Harrisburg. Then she'll go dry.

Stiles' niece, Laura Dufford, said the whole family has gotten behind Mindy.

"She's an awesome cow," Dufford said.

Dufford said the entire family came out to show support for Stiles and Mindy at the Montgomery County Fair.

Waverly Farms is run by Paul and his brothers, Michael, Tracy, Kenny, and the late Blair.

Dufford said the win at the Maryland State Fair is exciting because it's not just a Maryland exhibition.

"This is more of a Mid-Atlantic show and all the cows out there are the best in their breed," Dufford said.

Though Stiles is quietly proud of Mindy and her accomplishments, Dufford said the cow is one of her "favorite things."

For his birthday in July, Dufford and her sister gave Stiles a painting of Mindy done on a rock that they hope will be added to his favorites list.

cooperatives and the milk dealers' association last month."

Writing to Pennsylvania congressmen on behalf of the united Pennsylvania dairy industry, Eckel said, "We recognize not all of the details of these (Gunderson's) concepts have been finalized, and that the ultimate details could alter support for the provisions."

Nevertheless, Eckel urged the lawmakers to review the following 12 policy points on which the Pennsylvania dairy industry has reached a united voice concerning farm bill dairy provisions.

1. The current budget reconciliation assessment being levied upon dairy producers should be repealed.

2. In order to accomplish number one, it is recognized that the support price for butter and nonfat dry milk will need to be removed. (Pennsylvania Farmers Union does not support this provision.)

3. We support the continuation of government purchases for domestic donation programs.

4. Full funding is supported for the Dairy Export Incentive Program to the allowable levels of the GATT.

5. We approve of the concept of establishing an export entity to assist in the export of dairy products.

6. The re-authorization of the Fluid Milk Processors Education Program is supported.

7. Although we approve of Federal Order consolidations through the hearing process, we strongly oppose Rep. Gunderson's proposal for legislated changes to Federal Orders and preemption of State Orders.

8. We support adoption of expedited administrative procedures for securing changes in Federal Orders including a provision to allow for amendments to Orders without endangering the loss of the entire Order.

9. As this is partially being done already, we support the replacement of the Minnesota-Wisconsin price series and Basic Formula Price with a product pricing formula for Class III products which will react more quickly to market changes.

10. As this is already the case, we support the continuation of a Class II price which is equal to the Class III price per hundred-weight plus $.30.

11. Multiple component pricing programs to determine the price paid producers for milk other than Class I is supported.

12. We support the formation of a national milk security fund to protect producers from loss of income due to processor bankruptcy, as long as state programs already in place may be maintained if they provide greater security than the proposed federal program.

"Hopefully the unification of the Pennsylvania dairy industry on these 12 points will provide Congress with a good starting point in its consideration of Dairy Title proposals for the 1995 Farm Bill," Eckel said.

Plowmen Compete At Old Tyme Days

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

MANCHESTER (York Co.) — Despite nearly-record low rainfall and dry fields for the past month, plowmen competing at the state and national plowing contests found northern York County's ground to be in fair working condition.

"It didn't plow all that hard," observed Bob Miller, Millersburg, president of the state Plowmen's Association and a key organizer of the plowing activities last week during Old Tyme Days. The 11th Old Tyme Days and 122nd Great Grangers Fair were held August 23-27 on the Blaine Rentzel farm, north of Manchester.

Miller added to several years of state wins by again taking the small plow honors. In the state large plow contest, Carlisle dairy farmer Bill Crain claimed Pennsylvania honors, also for a second year running. Vintage-equipment collector Chuck Noonan, York, added to his numerous state wins in the antique plow competition. State winners are now eligible to plow in the 1996 national contest, to be held next July in Sioux City, Iowa.

Other placings in the state small plow contest included Jay Stoner, Mechanicsburg, second; Michael McCoy, Chambersburg, third; Dennis Stoner, Mechanicsburg, and Matt McCoy, Chambersburg, tied for fourth; Trevor Rentzel, York, sixth; Dean Hess and John Conely, both of York, tied for seventh, Justin Hammers, York, ninth, and Harold Rauch, Walnutport, tenth.

Placing behind Crain in the large plow runoffs were Harold Forrester, Chambersburg, second, and Jim Mowry, Somerset, third.

Harold Forrester, Chambersburg, also finished second in antique plowing. Third was Michael McCoy, Chambersburg; fourth, Trevor Rentzel, York; fifth, Jay Stoner, Mechanicsburg; sixth, Charles Stambaugh, York; seventh, Dean Hess, York; and eighth, John Conley, York.

Judges for the state small plow contest included Myron Young, Chambersburg; Allen Deiter, Northumberland, and Charles Deitch, Carlisle. Large plow officials were Roy Mauer, Dalmatia, and Iowa plowman Jim Quinlan.

NATIONAL PLOWMEN'S COMPETITION

A total of 44 plowmen furrowed their way through the national runoffs, with top honors going to midwestern competitors. Winners of the small and large plow categories are now eligible to compete next year at the international contest to be held in Ireland.

Large plow winner was Travis Hutchinson, Bradford, Ohio. Though Hutchinson has been competing as a plowman since 1978, this was his first time to snag the first-place honors. He plowed with a 4-bottom, 14-inch International model.

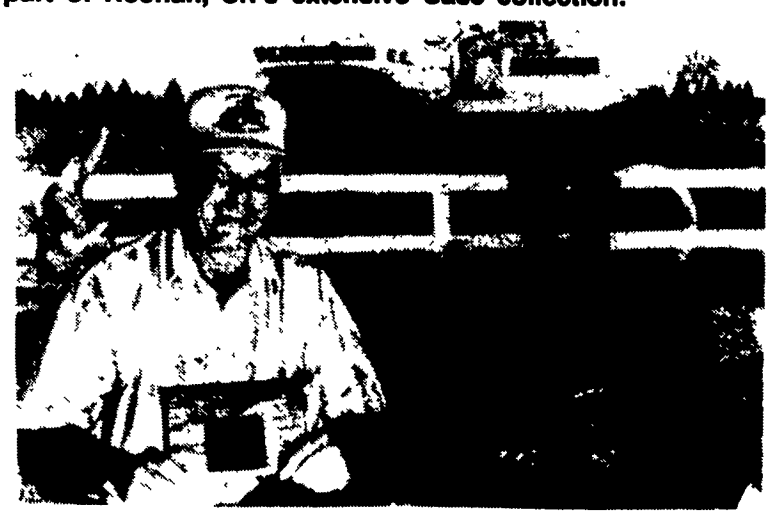
Ray Willhoite, Wall Lake, Iowa, also claimed his first national win, after several second and third place finishes in prior contests. He farms 600 acres of corn, beans, and hay, and has competed "off and on" since 1958.

Pennsylvanians who competed in the national small plow contest were Bob. Miller, Millersburg, who finished fourth, and Trevor Rentzel, York, 12th. Bill Crain, Carlisle, and Jim Mowry, Somerset, finished sixth and seventh in the large plow competition.

In addition to hosting tractor-powered plowing contests and a seminar for new plowmen, Old Tyme Days debuted a national horse plowing contest. Also new on the Old Tyme Days schedule was the J.I. Case Collectors' national meeting, pulling in vintage Case equipment enthusiasts from across the country. An extensive lineup of antique Case tractors and equipment, along with numerous restored pieces from other manufacturers, added to the show's variety.

Demonstrations of the early pieces ran through the five-day event, including baling, corn shelling and this year's added attraction, an operating belt-powered sawmill.

Chuck Noonan and his son, Chuck Noonan II, fork hay into their 1930 stationary Case baler. The baler is part of Noonan, Sr.'s extensive Case collection.



Ray Willhoite, Iowa, left, won the national small plow contest, while large plow national honors went to Travis Hutchinson, Ohio. The original painting behind the winners was created by local artist Lisa Ahrens in honor of the J. I. Case Collectors national meeting held during Old Tyme Days.

Silo Gas
A Silent Killer

In the case of silo gas, the saying, "A little knowledge is dangerous," should be replaced by, "No knowledge can be fatal."

Another slogan, "Haste makes waste," could read, "Haste means death."

As in most farm accidents, farmers know about the dangers but they get in a big hurry, or are too tired and forget to take proper precautions. With a little common sense, a farm fatality can be prevented.

In sealed silos, some nitrogen gas is produced, but the greater amount is carbon dioxide. This odorless, colorless gas replaces the oxygen in the silo and can overcome a person without warning. For this reason, sealed silos are designed in a way that entering them is unnecessary.

In conventional upright silos, the dangerous gas is nitrogen dioxide (NO_2). Nitrate or nitrite gases are especially dangerous in grasses or corn which have been heavily fertilized or exposed to rain before harvest following a period of drought.

With the weather conditions in 1995 in Chester County coupled with the high fertility levels of the soils, this year could have a high potential for silo gas accidents or deaths.

Nitrogen dioxide has a bleach-like odor, and the low-lying fumes are yellow, red, or dark brown. It is heavier than air so it will settle on the top of the silage or go down the silo chute and collect in feed rooms and even flow into the barn producing a danger to livestock. The greatest danger occurs 12 to 60 hours after filling the silo.

Many farmers think that silo gas is only a problem with corn silage, but it can be produced in haylage.

A dairyman near Elverson had a close call this spring upon entering a conventional silo recently filled with haylage. He had some serious symptoms for a few days, but thankfully has completely recovered.

This gas causes severe irritation of the throat and nose and may lead to inflammation of the lungs. Death can occur immediately. Being briefly overcome by the gas can result in a fall that can cause death or serious injury.

However, what makes nitrogen dioxide especially dangerous is that low level exposure may only result in a little immediate pain or discomfort and that night, the farmer could die in his sleep from fluid collecting in his lungs.

Relapses with pneumonia symptoms can occur up to two weeks later.

Precautions:

1) If crops have been damaged by hail or frost, harvest as quickly as possible to prevent nitrate build-up and delay harvesting immediately after a rain.

2) Excess nitrates are stored in the bottom portion of the plant, so raise your harvester and cut higher than normal.

3) Display "Deadly Gas" signs around silos and particularly keep children away from area for 2 weeks following filling.

4) Close feed room door to barn.

5) If you must enter the silo during the first 3 weeks to level the silage, lower the unloader, or make repairs, be absolutely sure to follow these safety rules:

a) Run the blower for 20 minutes before entering the silo and keep it running the entire time anyone is in the silo.

b) Have a helper standing by in case a problem develops.

c) Wear a N.I.O.S.H. approved dust mask to protect lungs from dust and mold spores.

We have a lot of good farmers in Chester County, but none to spare. Take your time and be careful.

Market Lamb Blows Away

brought $2,677 from Singo Feed and Sons, or $2.25 a pound.

Average price paid for the 54 steers was $1.12 a pound.

Megan Frazee's 257-pound, grand champion York market swine sold for $1,542, or $6 per pound to First Philson Bank of Berlin. Frazee is from Fort Hill.

Matt Pletcher, Rockwood, saw his reserve grand champion York hog go to Somerset Hoss's for $932, or $4 per pound.

Sale average for the 148 hogs was $1.27.

The five and a half hour event brought a grand total of $140,953.45, according to sale statistician John Hartman.

Walker Farm Service spent more than $9,000 and was the premier buyer.

Many sale donations were made to the Somerset County 4-H Development Scholarship Fund and area fire companies.

Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Coronation Sept. 23

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services, Inc. will hold its 39th annual princess pageant on Saturday evening, September 23 at the Sheraton Inn in Harrisburg. A milk punch reception at 5:30 will be followed by the banquet at 6:30 and the pageant at 8:00 p.m.

Thirty-five county dairy princesses will compete for the title of Pennsylvania Dairy Princess now held by Natalie D. Welch of Somerset County. The newly-selected princess will reign for a period of one year from September 1995 to September 1996. During that time, she will represent all of Pennsylvania's dairy farmers speaking out for milk and all its products.

To kick off its 40th year of dairy promotion activities, a special event at this year's banquet will be the auction of a specially-designed 40th Anniversary Winross Milk Truck. This truck, mounted for desk display, will be the very first (number one) of a limited number of collector's milk trucks to be offered for sale starting at the conclusion of the pageant. Information concerning these collector's trucks may be obtained by calling Wanda Yoder at (717) 935-5317.

The pageant, which will be held on the Saturday evening preceding the annual All American dairy week, will end two full days of activities and interviews for the contestants. Four judges, all from out-of-state, will select the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and two Alternates from seven finalists.

The Pennsylvania Dairy Princess program is supported by Pennsylvania dairy farmers through their various advertising and promotion agencies: American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc., Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association; Federal Order #36-Mideast UDIA; Allied Milk Producers; and the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, with contributions from other dairy related organizations and individuals. Again this year, as the result of a grant from Sire Power, Inc., and several anonymous individuals, the awards to the winners will be: $1,200 to the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and $600 to each of her two Alternates.

In addition, two contestants will receive $100 awards for outstanding original dairy promotions for school children and there will be two $100 awards for the best speeches designed for adult audiences. There will also be two $50 awards for compiling scrapbooks which chronicle county dairy princess activities to date. The contestants themselves will select the "Miss Congeniality" award from among their own ranks.

The primary prupose of the Dairy Princess program in Pennsylvania is the promotion of the dairy industry and the sale of its products on the local grass roots level. Incentive Awards will again be given to the counties whose last year's princess and her committee completed the incentive requirements.

Additionally, an individual award of $300 will be given to the young woman who has been the most outstanding dairy promoter during her county reign. This award, entitled the "Tina Shultz Memorial Award," is given in memory and honor of an outstanding young woman, who in May 1986, succumbed to cancer, during her reign as Huntingdon County Dairy Princess.

Pa. Dairy Princess and Promotion Services announces that the Saturday morning presentation session will be open to the public, free of charge. It will run from 8:00 a.m. until 12:00 noon in the Sheraton Ballroom.

Saturday evening, September 23rd, promises to be an exciting evening for 35 county contestants and their families as well as for our Pennsylvania Dairy Industry. Tickets for the event are $20 per person and are available on a "first come" basis from Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services, Inc., 214 South Street, Box 640, Clarion, Pa. 16214. (814) 226-7470. All tickets must be paid in advance and will be held at the door.

Huntingdon County Dairy Shows Held

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

HUNTINGDON (Huntingdon Co.) — Dairy exhibitors at the Huntingdon County Fair persevered in spite of the August heat with a little help from nearby fans, both those seated in the bleachers watching the show, and those swirling above the showring. Held at the Huntingdon County Fairgrounds, the open show was held on Tuesday of fair week, the day after the 4-H and FFA dairy show. The heat of the day caught several cows panting and others wanting to nap instead of walk the showring.

In the open Holstein show, judge Dale Olver of Penn State called the decision between Globe Run's 4-year-old and Speerette Farm's aged cow a close call. In the end, Globe-Run Jethro Violet took the grand champion rosette home while Naomi J.H. Speer's My-Favorite Vanguard Kandy took reserve champion honors. Charann Foster's summer yearling, Globe Run BJ Bon Bon, earned the junior champion position and Tara Kocher's fall calf, Walnut-Hills Vintage Charity, took the reserve honors.

Two senior 2-year-olds competed for grand champion honors in the Brown Swiss show. Brandy Horning's Towpath Elation Pepsi edged out another heifer owned by Ian Hayden. Horning also took junior champion with her summer yearling. Clinton Staley earned reserve junior champion with his winter yearling.

In the Jersey show, Kendy Gable's 5-year-old earned her the grand champion ribbon while EDN-RRU Jerseys entered the winning reserve grand champion, a cow in the six-years and over class. Crystal Staley showed the junior champion, a spring yearling, while EDN-RU Jerseys showed the winning reserve junior champion.

As owner and breeder, Matthew Goshorn showed his senior 2-year-old to take grand champion honors. Jason Heeter took reserve grand champion honors with his dry cow. Jason also showed the reserve junior champion, a summer yearling. Junior champion honors went to Monica Goshorn and her winter calf.

Popsicle Named Supreme At South Mountain

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

ARENDTSVILLE (Adams Co.) — Supreme attraction at the Adams County Holstein Show and South Mountain Fair dairy show this year was a Popsicle.

"Hills-Hope Nitro Popsicle," a senior three-year-old, won the Holstein show championship, then bested five other dairy breed champions to take the South Mountain Fair's supreme dairy title. The Adams County Holstein Show was held in conjunction with the fair's open-class competition for all dairy breeds on September 1.

Popsicle's sweep of the shows was a thrilling first for her 12-year-old owner and exhibitor Melinda Reichard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Reichard, Waynesboro. In her string of wins, the third-year youth exhibitor also carried off honors for the youth show championship and open class best udder designation.

Melinda purchased the stylish young cow as a calf when she was sold at the Franklin County Calf Sale by her breeder David Hill. Fresh since March, Popsicle is still milking at the high 80-pound level, after being exhibited through some of August's worst heat. She finished her first lactation over 18,000 milk and has not yet been scored.

Teaming up to award the supreme title were Holstein show judge Scott Cooper, Delta, and Maryland Holstein breeder Mike Haines, who judged the colored dairy breed contests.

Taking the South Mountain Fair's reserve supreme title was the Brown Swiss champion Euphorias Johnny D Becky, exhibited by John and Bonnie Hess, Gettysburg. The five-year-old also earned best udder designation in the Brown Swiss show.

Senior and grand champion in the Ayrshire classes was Wentworth Farm Benefactor Melanie, the five-year-old exhibited by Richard Martin. Guernsey breed top honors went to the four-year-old, Moovervile Alfs Roseanna, exhibited by John Garber III.

Lesters Brenda of Gaywood bested the Jersey show, snagging the champion rosettes for exhibitor Brad Reichard. In the Milking Shorthorn show, Glenn and Heather Crowl's senior two-year-old, Joyel Red Dolphin claimed the breed title.

In the Holstein breed show, reserve senior and grand champion was Spungold Aero Spring-ET, bred and exhibited by Dale and Deanna Bendig. The junior two-year-old was also named the best senior female bred and owned.

Holstein show junior champion was Ke-Holtz Ch Val Kitkat, a winter calf exhibited by Shannon Holtzinger. Reserve junior champion honors went to the spring yearling of Dale and Deanna Bendig, Spungold Tiger Lavern-Twin.

Jemaro Farms, New Oxford, claimed premier breeder and exhibitor banners with a series of high placings by their 14-head show string. The exhibitor win was the second in a row for Jemaro, owned by Jeff and Mary Kay Roche. Ke-Holtz Holsteins, Kevin and Karen Holtzinger, East Berlin, placed second in both banner classes. Third for exhibitor was Jo-Bo Farms, John and Bonnie Hess, Gettysburg, and third for breeder was Reich Dale, the Ed Reichard family, Chambersburg.

Chester County Honors 4-H Steer Exhibitors

KIMBERTON (Chester Co.) — Once is fine, but twice is nice — especially for Phillip McAllister, who captured the grand champion steer title at the Chester County 4-H Steer Show and Sale held at the Kimberton Fire Company Fairgrounds.

This is the second championship title for Phillip, who is also a member of the Chester County 4-H Swine Club. Just three weeks ago, he walked away with the champion hog of their show and sale.

This was quite an achievement for an 11-year-old 4-H member, who was up against some stiff competition with his steer and his fellow 4-H members vying for the championship.

One of those members, Sara Howe, who exhibited the reserve champion steer, has had the advantage of learning from her older sisters and brothers and is wasting no time establishing her own goals and achievements.

There was a total of two heifers and 19 steers exhibited. Judge for the day was Nelson Beam, leader of the Chester County 4-H Swine Club.

At the sale, auctioneer Bill McCauley opened the bidding on the champion steer. A final bid of $2.45 per pound for a total of $2,964.50, was made by Hoss's Steak and Sea House, Duncanville, represented by Robb Harris. The reserve champion steer exhibited by Sara Howe was sold for $1.80 per pound a total of $2,304, purchased by Herr's Food, Nottingham, represented by Dennis Byrne and family.

The following is a list of show placings.

New Holland Farmers Fair Set

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — A blend of the old and the new join together as New Holland plans for the 64th Anniversary of the Farmers Fair, Oct. 3 - 7.

Sheep and swine will be shown and sold at the New Holland Sales Stables on Fulton Street.

Always a crowd pleaser is the bake sale, which is held on Wednesday, Oct. 4 at noon on Franklin Street in front of the Ford Building. It's a fight to the finish as everyone wants to take home some of the baked goods — perhaps even the first, second, or third place winner.

Along with the old comes something new — Laser Runner. Laser Runner is a laser tag game where each person is suited in a thick vest with sensors on the front and back to provide the costume. A phaser-like pistol linked by cable to the vests power pack completes the ensemble. Players dive into the cruiser which is divided into several chambers connected by portals. Rubbery pillars of varying height provide cover. Points are scored with each hit you make. When you're hit, your vest vibrates a warning and your gun goes dead for five seconds. Young and old alike can test their skills in the Laser Runner.

4-Year-Old Is Franklin County Champion

JOANNE E. MORVAY
Franklin Co. Correspondent

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.)—A 4-year-old Holstein that placed fourth in her class last year was named grand champion of the recent Franklin County Dairy Show.

Seelby Counselor Ericka is owned by Joshua Eshelman of St. Thomas. The 16-year-old has had Ericka since she was a calf.

He was very surprised by her win, though he likes the cow a lot, Josh said.

"I just took care of her nice and had her looking right," said Josh.

Judge Steven Shaw of Williamsburg said Ericka was a "definite first" place cow. White said Ericka had great bloom of udder with "good heighth and width of the rear udder."

Josh said Ericka is easy to work with in the ring. "She's really tame and she has a nice personality," he said.

Josh and Ericka also won senior champion, 4-H grand champion, and 4-H senior champion at the county's annual show.

The awards made this Franklin County Fair one of the best ever for Josh. "I'm having a blast," he said.

Josh, the son of Garnet and Wanda Eshelman, is a member of the Western 4-H Dairy Club and the Franklin County FFA.

The premier breeder and exhibitor at the fair was El-Dor Farm of Chambersburg.

El-Dor is owned and operated by J. Eldon Crider, his wife Dorothy, and sons Richard and J. Arlan Crider.

The family is a perennial winner of the breeding and exhibiting award at the fair, winning it for the last three consecutive years and also in 1990.

Richard Crider said the family does not set a goal to win the awards.

"Good cows can come from anywhere," he said. "I just try to do the best I can and let the awards take care of themselves."

The premier breeder award is more significant to the family. "Because you have to breed the animal and raise it, there's more of a time commitment involved," Arlan Crider said.

The Criders were not expecting either award going into the fair, "because we felt a lot of our cows were in the wrong stages of lactation," he said.

"It's very gratifying to know that you've bred a good group of cows," Richard Crider said.

The brothers started showing cattle more than a decade ago while in 4-H. They had eight animals at the county fair.

El-Dor is milking about 65 head at present. Eldon, Arlan, and Richard share the farming responsibilities. Arlan also works for Pennsylvania DHIA.

"The challenge of being able to be at a different member's farm each day and getting to know each member better, makes the job of a PA DHIA Technician worth while and fun at the same time," explains Lonnie Swanger, a technician from Cumberland County. He was awarded the Rookie of the Year Award at the 1994 Annual Technician's Summer Conference. Lonnie was presented with the Merit Award at this year's Technician's Summer Conference. This adds evidence to the fact that Lonnie cares and does a super job for his clients in Cumberland County. To date he has been with PA DHIA for two years. Starting with 30 herds, he quickly has built his circuit up to include 38 herds. This has been accomplished by consolidating some herds from another circuit but Lonnie is quick to point out that he has been able to establish some new clients in his two-year tenure.

Lonnie graduated from Manatee High School, Bradenton, Florida, in 1986. Upon graduation, he moved to Pennsylvania. At this point, he joined the Navy for 3½ years of service to his country. For one year he served in the Persian Gulf area as a boatswain, which included navigating the ship, preserving the ship, and manning the guns. For the next 2½ years he was stationed at the Philadelphia Ship Yard, where he was responsible for the indoctrination of the aircraft carrier, Kitty Hawk, which included the responsibilities of checking in and preparing the facilities. After serving his country, he worked in the plumbing and heating business for 1½ years. Upon completion of that experience, he worked in a bakery for 1½ years. It was at that point Lonnie decided to become a PA DHIA technician.

The reports from the Westfalia Dairy Plan Program play a tremendous poart in his everyday duty as a technician. He presents each dairyman with at least two same-day test reports. The two favorites are Milk Production - high-to-low and the Persistency Report. Lonnie feels that giving each dairyman these reports allows them to make quick decisions in managing his herd.

Lonnie is a member of the Mount Zion Lutheran Church and is a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, where he serves as quartermaster.

PA DHIA is proud to have such a dedicated person serving them in the Cumberland County area. Please feel free to contact PA DHIA at 1-800-344-8378, if we can assist in your dairy operation.

"With Hoffman 89, I got 98 bushels per acre, and great test weights too."

— Glenn Wiand, Mifflinburg, PA

"As a cash-crop producer who farms more than 2,000 acres, I need reliable, dependable seed products Sure, I'm always trying new things, but when you have a good variety like Hoffman 89, you stick with it"

"Hoffman 89 gives me good yields, and even better test weights, so it's proved to be a moneymaker in our operation. It has good standability and responds well to high managment, with either manure or nitrogen"

Hoffman 89 wins yield tests as well as producing test weights well over 58 lb/bu. In recent Lancaster County trials, it produced a 5% advantage over the mean yield, on top of an additional 5% over mean test weight. At $3.00 per bushel, that dual advantage added up to $15.30 per acre for Hoffman 89.

So take a close look at Hoffman 89. There's no better way to protect your investment in time, labor and resources. Call Hoffman Seeds at 1-800-776-7929, and let us show you how to make the most of your wheat crop this year.

Drought Watches, Warnings Have Farmers Concerned

state, normal yields of 120-130 bushels per acre may fall from a third to a half to perhaps 75 bushels per acre or less because of the dry weather, according to Greg Roth, associate professor of agronomy at Penn State. The Penn State corn specialist said late planted corn will be most severely affected, and farmers should be concerned.

Roth said that some farmers are harvesting corn for silage too late when the corn is far too dry. He said he has heard of "silo fires occurring because corn was too dry" in Lebanon and Lancaster counties as a result of not enough moisture to ensile properly.

While Lancaster and southeastern counties have nearly completed corn silage harvest because of the dry weather, northern counties are just beginning their harvest.

"The best thing to do is to perform a moisture test on the crop," said Roth.

Rather than using common methods of observing and getting a feel for when the crop may be ready, it's best for farmers to conduct the test. Chopped silage is placed on a paper plate, placed in a microwave, and dried to the point where the weight stabilizes. A measurement is taken from start to finish weight to determine moisture content.

Another way to test for moisture is to use a Koster-like tester, a countertop unit that is essentially "a hairdryer with a basket," said Mark Madden, agronomy agent in Bradford County.

This week, Madden said that he conducted a moisture test at a dairy farm in Montrose, Susquehanna County. In Bradford and Susquehanna counties, corn silage harvest is two weeks ahead of schedule.

In a dry year, said the agronomy agent, "normal rules of thumb should be put aside." Farmers need to be "out there, getting that moisture test," he said.

Although some parts received rain from a storm that passed through about the third week in August, total rainfall for much of the area is less than a half inch.

According to the River Forecasting Center, Bradford County averaged only 1.3 inches of precipitation, 1.8 inches below normal for the month.

Madden said it is important for the farmer "to be in the fields and, using the moisture test, evaluate the moisture of the crop, not rely on feel or looking at it."

Joel Hunter, agronomy agent for Crawford and Erie counties, said the county also has been drought stressed, recording only a half inch of rain for some spots in August. Hunter said a typical August brings about 3½ inches of rain. According to the River Forecasting Center, only 2.5 inches of rain fell for the county on average, down about 1.7 inches for the month.

Many agronomy agents agreed that totals were spotty and that some areas received welcome relief from timely thunderstorms and others did not.

Harvest, said Hunter, is "rolling now, and everything is that far accelerated" because of the continued hot, dry weather. Hunter said his office has received calls from producers who are worried about the mixed quality going into the harvest, where several fields, especially those that are deep and hold water, are greener than shallow planted fields.

But the biggest concern for Crawford and Erie counties has been the concern about forest fires. Woodlot owners have to carefully watch for signs of possible forest fire outbreaks. Hunter said that forestry department personnel have been regularly inspecting wooded areas.

Corn growth depends on growing degree days (GDDs), which have accelerated because of the hot weather. Growers should keep a watch on the milk line and do moisture checks before harvest.

Some corn has literally died on the stalk, according to Roth, and will dry down fast, especially on shallower soils. The grain will still provide good feed value, but harvest time is critical.

Also, a big concern is the test weight. A good test weight per bushel of corn is 54-56 pounds, but in a dry year, kernel size and mass will shrink. Some will test at 50 pounds or less, depending on location.

Roth said that many farmers believe this is the driest August they've seen in 30 years. Mel Brown, Centre county agronomy agent, said that while the summer of '91 was droughty, rain fell in August that year to revive crops in the fall.

According to River Forecast Center records, Centre County received only 0.7 inch of rain on average in August, down 2.7 inches from normal for the month.

Especially hard hit are some alfalfa fields, which produced enough for three cuttings this year. "For many, there won't be a fourth cutting," said Brown.

Also, a big concern is the lack of an adequate supply of water for livestock. Brown said that in Rebersburg, Centre County, a farmer was concerned that his spring was drying up and was looking into finding another water supply for his cattle.

Many creeks have dried up to the point of being useless as a supply. Also, concern about shallow wells has risen — though most counties so far have reported few problems with water supplies from deeply drilled wells.

A challenge livestock producers face, according to Brown, is the hot weather, which increases water usage for livestock. On Thursday, a cold front was scheduled to bring scattered but possibly heavy rainfall to many locations in the state, bringing cooler weather by Saturday. Brown said that cooler weather would reduce water usage by livestock.

Soybean crops have also been hard hit by the dry weather, especially those planted late following barley or wheat, according to Walt Wurster, agronomy agent for Chester County. The county is also under a drought warning, less severe than the drought emergency declared for many counties in the summer of 1991.

For many soybean growers that planted early, running the combines through "will be enough to pay the cost of harvesting," said Wurster. The beans will be smaller, which means adjustments are needed before harvesting.

In a normal year, 60 bushels of soybeans or more are possible in some Chester County fields. However, this year, there could be a 50 percent reduction in yields to about 40 bushels or less. Depending on the condition of the crop, late beans may not "yield anything" and would have to be plowed down, according to Wurster.

Some farmers have had to drill new wells in the county, but Wurster has had few calls regarding residential use worries.

Are there any positive aspects to this drought?

It proves you cannot harvest by calendar or guesswork. But for those who want to do some fall tillage, conditions are ripe, and the ground could be worked with a chisel as dry as it is, according to Joel Hunter, Crawford County agent.

Also, some fall grains could get planted and would do well if timely rains would arrive mid-month.

Another positive side is that the price of corn could rise as a result, perhaps to $3 a bushel, depending on overall harvest, according to Walt Wurster, Chester County agent.

Mel Brown, Centre County agent, said that he spoke with his 87 year-old father the past weekend. He said that there was a saying, that if you get little moisture in summertime, there won't be much in the wintertime, either.

But for now, farmers need to be out in the fields, monitoring grain and silage moisture to see when they should harvest their crops, according to Roth.

The Right Choice in cage feeders

Chore-Time's popular ULTRAFLO® Cage Feeding System is now even more outstanding! We've developed and tested the second generation of ULTRAFLO feeders and named it the ULTRAFLO® II.

ULTRAFLO II offers you even greater reliability, durability, and outstanding feed-saving performance—up to 1 gram of feed per bird per day—over the original ULTRAFLO. And even the original ULTRAFLO was beating our competitors in feed savings!

Carroll County Holds 4-H, FFA Show

LOIS SZYMANSKI
Maryland Correspondent

WESTMINSTER, Md. — The Carroll County 4-H and FFA Fair recently kicked off a week of fun and excitement. Those seven days became a time for 4-H and FFA kids within Carroll County to reflect on their accomplishments for the year.

Some buildings at the fair displayed rows of home canned items, from beans to jellies. There were cakes and pies, breads and muffins, and more. Field crops and art, photography and home environment exhibits lined the shelves and hung from the walls.

The newest addition to this year's fair included a Llama showmanship class. Llamas are fast becoming a part of the local livestock scene. This year, Carroll County added the llama category to give young llama owners a chance to exhibit just like their friends with more conventional livestock.

Many of the llamas exhibited by children at this year's fair were leased from Briar Patch Farm in Finksburg, where 9-year-old Brian Brubach and his family have been introducing llamas to the area for the past six years.

Another new category in this year's fair was the writing category. The category was developed when a new writing club called the 4-H Flying Pencils proved how prolific Carroll County youngsters have become with their writing skills. The county is the first in the state of Maryland to have a writing category in its fair.

Bob Shirley, extension agent, didn't seem to be surprised by the number of entries into this new category. There were 71 entries, even with the May 31 deadline.

"I'm pleased with the whole aspect of the writing project," Shirley said, "because it helps with literacy and encourages extra writing."

Writing is a skill that is used in every walk of life, so it was a natural addition to the 4-H and FFA Fair in Carroll County.

Each year one of the largest crowds at the fair gather for the annual cake auction. Businesses and individuals offer bids on cakes and pies baked by 4-H and FFA kids. As the youngsters parade their blue ribbon and champion baked goods up and down the aisles, an auctioneer collects bids.

Last year's top cake was a blueberry cake baked by Amanda Tracey. This year the top cake was a yellow cake baked by 9-year-old Eileen Albaugh. Eileen is a member of the Union Bridge 4-H Club and has been in 4-H for two years. Selling for $1,250, it was purchased by Ron Hoff of Liqui-Turf and his brother Mike Hoff of Buck's Motor Sports The money will go into a fund to keep the 4-H and FFA Fair free to the public.

On Monday evening, July 31 the Farm Queen Contest took place. Thirteen-year 4-H member and six-year FFA member Tracey Clagett took the honor becoming the 1995 Carroll County Farm Queen by evening's end.

Tracey lives on a six-acre farmette near New Windsor. She has been a 4-H ambassador, Maryland Polled Hereford Princess, and a Star Regional Farmer. She has carried projects in beef, performing arts, sheep, horses, photography, canning, crafts, foods, art, wildlife, small pets, woodworking, and gardening.

Tracey has participated in demonstrations and public speaking programs, has been in the National FFA Chorus twice, and been chosen for national FFA talent in the past. She hopes to pursue a career in singing or communications. She attends Carroll Community College with the goal of achieving an associate of arts degree in communications.

Following is a list of placings from the various shows.

Fence Building Day Set

OSCEOLA (Tioga Co.) — A Tioga County Fence Building Day is scheduled Saturday, Sept. 16, from 11 a.m.-4 p.m. at the Hearle Robbins Farm.

This is a PASA-sponored field day.

Come and see how to build high tensile and temporary fence, put in good corners, work with aluminum and steel wire, and learn when to use polywire, insulators, and more.

This is not a tence building day with one system. The meeting will examine many different systems and encourage open discussion on what works.

able, in addition to various different fence materials.

The meeting will also discuss watering systems and intensive grazing in a drought.

Directions to Robbins Farm: The farm is on Rt. 49 east of Knoxville. From Wellsboro, travel northwest on Rts 6/287, three miles to Rt. 287 north. Follow Rt.

Half of the learning comes from what farmers are using and how it works at home. Several different high-tensile fence corners will be built and hands-on participation will be encouraged.

Recycled plastic post, locust, fiberglas and others will be available.

287 north to Rt. 249 west in Middlebury Center. Follow Rt. 249 to Keeneyville and take the Keeneyville Road to the right (north). We are having a dry spell after a wet summer. My houseplants don't know how lucky they are to be watered regularly. The plants that I have a problem watering are the hanging baskets of geraniums that my sisters gave for my birthday. You see, every few days I have to drag the kitchen chair out on the porch so that I can reach them to give them water. So far, I haven't fallen off the chair and they are still blooming.

My husband has been watering his transplanted raspberries and the strawberries too. But, he kept forgetting to turn off the water and so he bought a timer. It was no fun going outside with a flashlight at 11 p.m. to check if the water was shut off. I even got him to lay a soaker hose along my lima beans.

The other week I was glad that I had planted flowers in my garden as I could use them for a bouquet. Our son Philip and his wife Lisa had a baby girl and I sent her some flowers. However, they were not as beautiful as the ones that our daughter in Texas had a florist deliver. While she was in the hospital, we had their boys here at our home off and on. We live close to the road and so we can't let them play outside unless we are with them. A favorite game is hide-and-seek. The oldest boy always giggles when we get close to finding him and gives away his hiding place. The youngest can reach so many things — fish bowl, dishes on the counter, and pens and pencils by the telephone.

Our newest grandchild is a pretty baby and I'm sure she will keep her parents quite busy as I can remember when I brought home a new baby.

For 200 years, the McMillen family has farmed this Indiana County farm. Family members include Patrick and Jennifer McMillen, standing. Sitting from left are William, Karen, Helen, and John McMillen.

McMillens Celebrate 200 Years On The Farm

RANDY WELLS
Indiana Co. Correspondent

MARION CENTER (Indiana Co.) — A big white-and-blue banner has been hanging across the side of the red barn on the William McMillen farm at Marion Center RD 2 in Indiana County this summer. It proudly proclaims "200 Years, 1795-1995."

On the Fourth of July about 90 of McMillen's relatives gathered at the farm for the family's annual reunion. It included the usual reunion activities — a hayride, hog roast and home-made ice cream.

But a local television camera crew also showed up, because the McMillens were celebrating 200 years of continuous ownership of the farm stretching back through seven generations of their family.

When McMillen's forefathers came to America in the late 1700s they began farming the land along Wrigden Run in Rayne Township. Shawnee and Delaware Indians also lived there, and visited a trading post nearby.

As recently as last spring, John McMillen, William's father and the farm's immediate past owner, was still finding arrowheads in the fields.

In 1984 the McMillen farm was recognized by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture as a Century Farm — symbolizing at least 100 years of continuous family ownership.

The state does not yet have a program honoring farms that have remained in the same family for 200 years. But if it did, the McMillen spread would be the only one in Indiana County — and one of only 157 in the state — that would qualify for the bicentennial recognition, according to Sandy Duncan, the Century Farm Program coordinator in the agriculture department.

Farms that have been in the same family for two centuries are more common in eastern Pennsylvania because that area of the state was settled earlier. Observing 200 years of family farm ownership is more unique in western Pennsylvania.

"You don't do things like this every day," John McMillen said.

Robert Thompson — John McMillen's great-great-great grandfather — came to America from Ireland and settled in Derry, Westmoreland County, in 1773. Two years later they moved to land near present-day Marion Center, and purchased a tract of land from the heirs of William Penn. During the next 150 years, the farm passed down through succeeding generations.

John McMillen moved onto the farm in 1946 when it was operated by his uncle. He purchased the property in 1950, and ran the farm until his retirement in 1981.

John's son and daughter-in-law, William and Karen McMillen, now own the farm. They live in the 111-year-old main farmhouse, and John and his wife Helen live in a newer home nearby.

William received a degree in animal science from Penn State University in 1973 and was working as a district manager for the Ralston-Purina Company when he decided to go back to his roots and take over the family farm.

"It's more than just a job. It's a way of life," William said. "And you must have a commitment from your family."

In that regard he said he feels fortunate. Karen, an Omaha native, enjoys farm life. And their children, Jennifer and Patrick, are active in 4-H projects and have their own chores and responsibilities on the farm.

The 132-acre spread lies in three townships. With leased property the McMillens actively farm about 200 acres.

It is home to one of only two registered Jersey dairy herds in Indiana County. The McMillens milk about 50 cows and usually have another 25 young cattle on the farm.

Corn and alfalfa are the main crops, and everything grown is fed to the Jerseys to boost their milk production.

After William took over operation of the farm he upgraded the milking system. The cows are milked from stanchions in the barn, and the milk is transferred through a pipeline directly to storage tanks.

John McMillen describes the farm's land as about average for Indiana County. But over the years he has seen milk production from Jersey cows triple, and the per-acre production of corn more than double from what it once was. Those improvements, he said, are a result of improved animal breeding, better feeds, agricultural research and good management of the farm.

He credits son William with computerizing much of the farm's production records, and the business records of "Home Farm Supply," a retail dealership of agricultural seeds started by the father and son in 1984.

Milk production records for the McMillen's cows have been handled for years by DHIA, but William maintains much of the farm's additional information on his personal computer.

For the year ending in October, his herd average was about 13,500 pounds of milk per cow per year, with 500 pound of protein and 700 pounds of fat per cow per year.

McMillen is working to improve the farm's forage program to further boost milk production. This year he began using wrapped bales to get his hay crops off sooner.

"I've been doing my own breeding with artificial insemination for the past eight years. I've been able to select from six different suppliers. That's helped me a lot, being able to select the best in the U.S."

The farm is a small operation and William basically does the work himself with the help of a part-time high school student, his family and his retired father who lends a hand especially at harvest time.

Home Farm Supply remains a seasonal business William can devote time to in the spring when he's not so busy. It remains a partnership with his father.

Making a go of it on the McMillen spread hasn't always been easy. The drought of 1988 quickly comes to John McMillen's mind when hard times are mentioned.

"If I was 18 I'd do the same thing again," he said, then quickly added, "I'd sure make some changes," explaining that he'd add a few more labor-saving devices.

Nationally, the number of family farms is declining. But William McMillen can explain why his family's farm has survived 200 years.

"It continues to be profitable. It continues with hard work," he said.

There are no plans to enlarge the farm. Instead, to ensure the farm's future William will concentrate on making it more efficient by doing more of the maintenance himself and upgrading more of the equipment.

Will Jennifer and Patrick be the eighth generation of McMillens to own the farm?

"That's a decision they'll have to make when the time comes," William answered. "Hopefully the opportunity will be there."

HOMESTEAD NOTES

On Being a Farm Wife (and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp

Record rainfall. Record cool temperatures.

Record hot and dry?

We nearly drowned on the Fourth of July here in parts of York County Mother Nature's own fireworks that soggy afternoon washed out the planned ones with five inches of rain over some areas. Only an inch-and-a-half tumbled onto us that particular storm, but it added to the ongoing inch-plus rainfalls that kept June and July some of the dampest summer months we've had in ages.

And kept the lawn mowers busy and the weeds growing like there was no tomorrow.

Then, extremist that she can be, Mother Nature did an about-face and left us sweating in the dust.

Dust. Covering my car, parked in the garage with the door closed. Dust, blanketing the pepper plants in the garden and the marigolds in the border, some of the few things still thriving despite late summer's choking heat and dryness. Dust, stirring in little puffs behind the cows' feet as they plod toward the barn in the late afternoon sun.

Dust, rising in clouds in the distance with every pass of the tractors and forage wagons hauling in loads of chopped corn silage. Because the weather extremes responsible for the billowing dust have hastened the fall harvest.

After mid-August's stretch of near-100-degrees heat and drying breezes, the lower leaves of the cornstalks began turning brown, almost overnight. Day to day, you could see them shriveling, curling, the ears turning downward. While that's normal for the season, the intenseness of the furnace-like atmosphere greatly "hurried it up."

From nearly a half-mile across the meadow, the dust puffs mark the convoy of the harvest, from field to silo, load by load, packing away winter cow-chow for the "girls" in the dairy and heifer barns. They hustle past the house — too fast, I sometimes worry — to beat the weather that has dried the forage so quickly. And if it's too dry, quality starts slipping the moment the chopper gobbles the stalks from the field, because it won't store and cure just the way it should.

But while the desert environment has hastened the usual harvest hurry-up, it's slowed other parts of our routine.

The lawn mower — also covered with dust — is suffering from that lonely, unneeded feeling. My watermelon stalks succumbed to heat stroke about 10 days before the fruits were completely ripe. And the lush growth of the cantaloupes developed some ailment as well, just as the bulk of the nicest lopes were nearly ready.

Nor are there the usual lima beans to pick. They're a real embarrassment to my red-faced, green thumb. Those few small rows of lima beans germinated nicely, developed a thick stand of well-leafed plants — then vanished to bugs in a few days during the worst of the heat. Gone. I'm not even sure what did 'em in, probably those squishy, yellow bean beetle larvae. Something even nibbled at some of the weeds. Imagine that.

But the sweet corn was plentiful and delicious and tomatoes still ripen. A slow-running hose to the new strawberry plants has rejuvenated their cactus-like look, just as watering has freshened-up the dusty peppers and a tiny row of late string beans.

"All you farmers do is complain about the weather," I've been told.

Ah, yes, we do. But so does most everyone, it seems.

Eventually the brown clouds of dust will give way to a dusting of another sort. And the lawn mower will no longer be lonely — because we'll be stirring around it for a snowshovel.

And then we can complain about the cold.

Parsley, Rosemary, Sweet Marjoram, Tarragon and common Thyme are several popular herbs used today. These culinary herbs are also easy to grow in the backyard.

PARSLEY

Once established in the garden, spring parsley responds well to a weak fertilizer every two weeks or so. This is especially important if it is cut frequently.

Parsley is of course frequently used as a decorative addition to a plate of food, and it is a tangy addition to salads. When destemmed leaves are chopped in a blender with a little water (pack a 2 cup measuring cup with leaves, then fill with water). They can then be frozen into ice cubes for later use.

Parsley also makes a decorative hanging basket or pot. The green leaves can be dried quickly when spread on a cookie sheet and "cooked" at 400 degrees F for about 15 minutes. Sitr every 5 minutes and do not let it burn, just crisp. Crumble the crisp leaves. Remove any limp leaves, allow to cool and then store in a tight jar. Parsley does not dry well by hanging.

ROSEMARY

Rosemary comes in many different cultivars. The same cultivar grown in different parts of the country, may look very different. It is a perennial hardy to Zone 8. Since seedlings can take months, it is best purchased as a potted plant for most home gardens. Outdoors rosemary likes full sun. Soil can be kept on the dry side.

The pungent, curved needle-like leaves have many uses. It is easily dried by hanging woody stemmed bunches in a warm place. The leaves can then be stripped off and bottled. Rosemary is a very pungent herb, and it is best used sparingly on bland foods. In cooking, it is frequently used with chicken, and in baking, such as in breads.

SWEET MARJORAM

This is a tender perennial best grown as an annual. A member of the oregano family, sweet marjoram and oregano are often confused, but their flavors are different.

Sweet marjoram can be very susceptible to damping off and can be difficult to grow from seed. Purchase started plants. Place plants in full sun in a well-drained location.

Once established, leaves should be taken randomly rather than shearing the growing tips. When frost time nears, plants can be potted up and taken indoors for a few months.

Sweet marjoram dries easily on screens in the shade. Once dried, finish the drying in a 100 degree F. or lower temperature oven to crisp the leaves. Remove leaves from the stems and store in jars.

Sweet marjoram can be used fresh in omelets, mixed with fresh vegetables, and added to casseroles.

TARRAGON

Another on the top nine culinary herbs, tarragon comes in several forms. French tarragon is vegetatively propagated and not available from seed. Russian tarragon is grown from seed and is attractive as an ornamental plant. But, Russian tarragon is flavorless.

COMMON THYME

Thyme, a hardy perennial can be grown from seed in a flat kept at about 55 degrees.F. Germination takes three to four weeks. Plants will be small and not flower the first year. Plants will grow more robust and flower the second year. Thyme needs good drainage for its deep roots. Plants should not be set too close (12 inches), and should be hardened off before planting in the garden (a week or more of several hours of sunlight and then returned to shade before evening). Divide established plants in the spring. Fall transplanting can invite winter kill.

Dry thyme by hanging bunches in a warm place out of direct sunlight. In cooking, thyme is frequently used fresh or dried in soups, stews and sauces. Fresh thyme added to rice is a flavorful treat. Lemon-scented thymes are good for tea and potpourri.

Agricultural Lifestyle Program Set For Sept. 19

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — A special program on the changing lifestyle of agricultural families in Lancaster County will be presented during the general meeting of the Landis Valley Associates on Tuesday, September 19, at the Landis Valley Museum Visitor Center at 7 p.m.

The speaker for the program will be Steve Miller, who serves as museum curator for the Landis Valley Museum. According to Miller, the lifestyle of farming families in Lancaster County changed significantly during the time period that began in 1880 until 1920. Miller will examine the important changes of that time period as he contrasts and compares family structures, types of crops grown, livestock populations, the influence of tobacco on farming in the area, and the changes within families, such as how many children they had and how old first-time parents were. To demonstrate some of the changes over the years, Miller will highlight his program with fascinating slides and other visual aids.

"It was a very significant time period in the history of Lancaster County's farming families. In some ways, things didn't change a lot. In other ways, changes were very dramatic and still affect our lives today in the county," said Miller.

The public is invited to the free program. For further information, interested persons should contact the Landis Valley Associates at (717) 569-0402.

Apple Appeal

Pennsylvania and its surrounding states' apple season runs from late summer through October and traditionally reaches its peak the first of October, when the widest variety of apples is available from local orchards. Thanks to advanced storage techniques, the most popular apple varieties are available year-round.

It's a good thing that apples are so readily available. An apple is a lot of good food for relatively few calories and with no fat or sodium. That snappy crunch reflects an apple s high fiber content (over 4 grams). The insoluble fiber found in apples is important in cancer prevention. The National Cancer Institute recommends people eat 20-30 grams of fiber a day — about twice the current average. The soluble fiber in apples, called pectin, is similar to that in oat bran and can be a factor in cholesterol reduction.

Apples and apple juice contain Vitamin C and potassium (important in regulating blood pressure). Apples also supply boron, a trace mineral that can help the body retain calcium.

With 2,500 varieties grown in the U.S. and the variety of ways apples and apple products can be served, "two apples a day," makes healthy eating a snap.

Readers can receive a free brochure that describes the nutritional benefits of apples and snack'apple ps Send a stamped self-addressed business size envelope to International Apple Institute Brochure Offer, P.O. Box 1137, McLean, Va. 22101.

APPLESAUCE

6 medium cooking apples, peeled and quartered
½ cup water
⅓ cup sugar or 1 teaspoon artificial sweetener

Or heat in a microwave by placing apples and ¼ cup water in a 4-quart microwave safe baking dish. Cover and cook on high power 6 to 8 minutes or until tender. Crush cooked apples with a potato masher or electric beater. Stir in sugar and cinnamon. Makes about quart.

Note: For a smoother applesauce, mix cooked apples in food processor.

APPLE-TOPPED OATCAKES

1½ cups hot milk
¾ cup old-fashioned oats
1 egg, beaten
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
2 tablespoons molasses
1 cup all-purpose flour
1½ teaspoon baking powder
¾ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ginger
¼ teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
3 egg whites

Lemon apples:
2 tablespoons butter
5 medium apples, peeled and sliced
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel, optional
½ cup sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
¼ teaspoon nutmeg

In a large bowl, combine milk and oats; let stand 5 minutes. Stir in egg, oil, and molasses. Combine dry ingredients. Stir into oat mixture just until moistened. Beat egg whites until soft peaks form; fold gently into batter. Set aside. Heat butter in a skillet until foamy. Add apples, lemon juice, and peel. Cook uncovered for 8-10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Meanwhile, cook oat cakes: Pour batter by ¼ cupfuls onto a hot greased skillet. Cook until bubbles form; turn and cook until browned on other side. For apples combine sugar, cornstarch, and nuumeg; add to apple mixture and cook 2 minutes longer or until tender. Consuming Thoughts

Are you getting tired of bringing the same old lunch to work or school day after day? Brown bag lunches can be convenient and less expensive, but they can also be boring. You can add some variety and nutrition to your everyday lunch by following these helpful tips:

• Choose enriched and whole grain breads such as whole wheat, rye, or pumpernickel for added vitamins, iron, and fiber to your diet.

• Select breads such as pita pockets, sub rolls, or bagels for a variety of shapes and sizes to suit your appetite.

• Intstead of a plain tuna fish sandwich, add chopped cooked or raw vegetables to it.

• Choose chopped meat or poultry that is lean instead of processed for less sodium and fat. Add some sliced vegetables seasoned with a little French dressing for a hearty salad.

... Choose beverages that contain vitamins, minerals, and energy (calories) such as lowfat or skim milk and fruit juices that are 100 percent juice.

When packing your sandwich, make sure to do it properly to prevent any spoiling from occurring. The following tips can help:

• Carry cold foods in an insulated lunch box or bag since they keep foods cold for a longer time than paper bags.

• Use chilled ingredients when making your sandwich.

• If you have access to a refrigerator, then refrigerate your food. If you bring your lunch in an insulated lunch box or bag, remember to open it so that the cold refrigrated air can reach it.

• Freeze your sandwich the night before. Frozen sandwiches packed in the morning will be thawed by lunchtime. Freeze simple sandwiches such as those made with peanut butter, sliced meat, or poultry instead of those made with mayonnaise or hard cooked eggs.

Keeping the brown bag lunch from developing food poisoning for you or your children takes a few precautions.

When preparing the food, keep all utensils and countertops scrupulously clean. They need to be washed after contact with the raw food and again before contact with any food that will not be cooked. Wash your hands the same way and teach family members that it is easy to cross-contaminate. Only cooking food to at least 165 degrees will kill bacteria.

If you take these simple precautions, your brown bag lunch will be as safe as it is delicious.

For safety sake, don't let the lunch stand at room temperature for long periods of time — not more than two hours. Packing hot foods in sterilized vacuum bottles will help provide that tempting lunch. To keep food cold, refrigerate, and pack the lunch with a freeze gel product or make one by filling any empty plastic margarine tub with water and freezing it. You can also freeze a box of juice as your cold source or freeze sandwiches ahead for easy lunch packing.

Showing Appreciation Counts!

Part of making and keeping a family strong is showing appreciation to all the people who care for members of your family — teachers, nursing home assistants, counselors, day care providers, community volunteers. Research shows the stronger a persons' support network is, the more likely she is to survive the ups and downs that life brings. By showing appreciation to others, you help make the connections between your family members and their caring network stronger.

Showing appreciation doesn't need to cost money. It starts with a simple thank you and a smile. A smile can change someone's day and positively affect the care he gives to others.

In addition to thanking your child's teacher or the meals-on-wheels volunteer, offer a compliment. Make this descriptive. Rather than saying, "You really are a good person to work with kids," try being more specific. Tell the person exactly what you appreciate. Tell her how she makes a difference.

"I really appreciate how you get down on my son's level and hug him when he finishes creating something."

"Every night Christopher comes home and recalls the chapter of the novel you're reading with them each afternoon."

"You always speak so gently and caringly to my Mom when you work with her."

Each of these compliments tells your caregiver that you notice what she does and you value the effort she is giving to her job. This kind of appreciation sustains a person whose work often goes unnoticed. Guaranteed, your family member will continue to receive quality care from this individual. I know that I feel better each time my boss pops his head in my office and shares a positive comment about a recent project that I worked on. His appreciation motivates me to create quality programs.

If you are not completely satisfied with the care received, still look hard. Find something that is right and reinforce it. This is one way to encourage improved care.

Regularly communicate with caregivers about your family members. Did your daughter have a poor night's sleep? Tell her so. When family matters are turbulent, children and adults often act out that stress in other settings. A caregiver can be more supportive if he understands the cause of the behavior. By keeping a person informed, you communicate that his role in your family member's life is important.

You can also show how much you value a person by being prompt and paying for services on time. How would you feel if your boss came up to you on pay day and said, "Sorry, but I forgot your check. Can I pay you on Monday?" Caregivers have expenses just like you. You show your respect when you pay on time.

If you want to show your gratitude with a gift, I encourage you to give a non-food item when possible. Consider flowers, ornaments, magazines, new program supplies or idea books, gift certificates for a makeover, play or sporting event, photographs. Each of these can be a personalized expression of thanks.

Taking time to appreciate the many people who help your family really matters. The return on your investment will be great in the amount of positive care your relatives receive.

Is He A Real 'Cow Boy?'

Ever since he was a toddler, 18-year-old Michael Batz has been fascinated with rodeos. When he was 6 or 7 years old, he and his sister were playing rodeo in the barn. An uncooperative calf resulted in Michael needing seven stitches above the eye, but that didn't quelch his love for wanting to be a cowboy and ride in a rodeo. All through his growing up years on his parents', Richard and Betty Batz's, 128-acre farm in Annville and at Northern Lebanon High School, where he was FFA president, Michael kept wanting to ride. A few days before he left for Northwestern College in Ohio, Michael was caught by the camera in this pose. I guess you could say he is a real "cow boy."

Jennifer Finds Success With Southdowns

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

AKRON (Lancaster Co.) — Jennifer Zimmerman was not happy when her mother suggested she start raising sheep.

"I did not want to do it," Jennifer said as she recalled her attitude toward her mother's suggestion.

Two years later, Jennifer is delighted that she and her brothers, Jay, 15, and Jimmy, 11, decided to raise sheep and show them at 4-H and fair competitions.

"It took a while, but after we started showing sheep and learning more about them in 4-H, it became really interesting to work with them," Jennifer said.

Recently, Jennifer showed a Southdown aged ewe that was named Supreme Champion Sheep at the Elizabethtown Fair.

"The secret to having a champion, I think, is walking the sheep a lot," Jennifer said. She estimates that she spends about 5 to 7 minutes daily walking each of her sheep. She fastens harnesses on the sheep and usually walks 2 to 3 at a time.

It isn't easy for Jennifer to find time to care for her sheep. She lives in the town of Akron and cannot raise sheep in the borough limits. Instead her sheep live at her aunt's farm in Lebanon.

"Every day that we don't have school and as much as we can on other days, we go to my aunt's place," Jennifer said.

Her aunt, who has been into breeding sheep for many years, has 50 Southdowns. The Zimmermans have about 17 head — all of them Southdowns.

Southdowns are one of the oldest breeds of sheep. The Southdown originated in England where it contributed to the development of other breeds. The Southdown is best suited to farm flock production. It is medium to small sized with gray to mouse-brown face and wool on the legs. An early maturing beed, it has good lambing ability, average milking ability and excellent crossing ability for producing meaty lamb carcasses at lightweights and hot-house lambs. The Southdown is adaptable to varied and wet climates, and yields a medium, easy to-spin wool.

"I like Southdowns because they are smaller than a lot of other breeds and easier to show and prepare for shows," Jennifer said.

Her aunt's Lebanon County place is called Strawberry Southdowns. Separate pens with plenty of room for running and exercising are erected among the tree-lined acres.

An Australian German Shepherd named Bear guards the sheep. Bear runs along the fence and barks whenever he thinks a sheep is not behaving.

"Sometimes a sheep will jump over the fence. Then Bear makes sure it doesn't go on the road," Jennifer said.

Jennifer knows all her sheep by name. She tries to select names to fit the sheep such as Chipmunk, which has big cheeks. Sometimes the sheep are already named when she purchases them, sometimes, she just likes a name. Such is Anyana, the supreme champion sheep that was named after a girl who moved to Germany.

"I just thought it was a neat name," Jennifer said of the decision to name the champion sheep.

When Jennifer is not taking care of her sheep or in school, she is either delivering newspapers or playing field hockey at Ephrata High School.

"My brothers each have a newspaper route, too," Jennifer said. "That's how we get money to pay for our sheep."

The money earned for winning is used to pay for the feed and to buy more sheep.

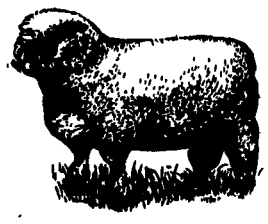
Before shows, Jennifer prepares her Southdown lambs for shearing.

Jennifer lives in Akron with her parents, Jay and Joanne Zimmerman, but keeps her sheep with her Aunt Judy Moyer's Strawberry Southdowns.



Sometimes the sheep are not very cooperative, but Jennifer tries to walk each one 5-7 minutes a day.

Youth To Learn How Forests Function

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — A walk in the woods is at the center of a research project in Penn State's School of Forest Resources designed to give urban youths from Philadelphia and surrounding communities a first-hand look at how a forest functions.

The program, slated to begin in fall 1996, is aimed at seventh-, eighth- and ninth-graders. Each session will consist of a series of classroom lessons on forestry based on Project Learning Tree, and environmental education program developed by the American Forest Foundation. The classes will be followed by a day-long tour and activities at a forest demonstration site in French Creek State Park, near Reading.

The seven Penn State sites are in Forbes State Forest in Ligonier, Penn State's Stone Valley Experimental Forest near State College, State Game Lands 211 near Dauphin, Tiadaghton State Forest near Williamsport, Lackawanna State Forest near Thornhurst, French Creek State Park, and on private land in Clarion County. A demonstration site is typically 12 acres divided into six two-acre parcels harvested to illustrate various methods of timber cutting

The six treatments are:

• No Harvest. By seeing a section that has not been cut at all, viewers can better understand each harvesting alternative.

• Thinning from Below. This method removes all trees smaller than a calculated diameter. Because the smaller trees are being outcompeted by larger neighbors, removal provides minimal benefit to the trees that are left. Elimination based on size also could mean cutting out several tree species that develop at a slower rate.

• Improvement Thinning. This treatment is designed to meet goals for production of timber for income, maintenance of wildlife habitat, and protection of soils and other resources. Trees of various sizes are cut, redistributing growing space to trees that are more desirable for timber production or wildlife value.

• Thinning from Above. This treatment, called "high-grading," removes all trees larger than a certain diameter, usually regardless of location. By cutting for diameter only, certain species can be totally eliminated from the remaining tree stand. In addition, forest regeneration falls on smaller, and possibly genetically inferior, trees.

• Clearcut. A clearcut removes all trees in one harvest, much like a natural disturbance such as a fire or a tornado. Foresters must ensure that natural regeneration of young seedlings is in place before the cut is made, to prevent the site from being overgrown by ferns or grasses. Clearcutting leads to forests of even-aged trees, usually species suited to direct sunlight, such as poplar, aspen, or cherry.

• Shelterwood. This treatment favors such tree species as oak or white pine, which grow best under the partial shade or shelter of other trees.

Cookbook Is Lamb-Lovers Treasure House

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Jill Stanford Warren's favorite meat is lamb.

"But I have discovered that not everyone likes it. The world seems to be divided between the lovers and the haters — there is no middle ground," Warren said.

If people taste lamb the way it should be cooked, Warren believes, they, too, will discover the wonderful taste of lamb.

Warren grew up in a home where Sunday dinner was often leg of lamb.

"We always had it at Easter. My mother cooked it the traditional way, with lots of garlic inserted into the meat and fresh rosemary from her herb garden sprinkled on top. She served it slightly pink. It was far and away my favorite dinner," Warren said.

Lamb is also the most popular meat in the Middle East, Northern Africa, and Greece. In France, Warren writes, 48 percent of the people prefer lamb over other types of meat. Many upscale restaurants in the U.S. serve lamb, but you can learn to successfully prepare savory dishes at home by following her simple guidelines.

In addition to recipes, the cookbook includes lamb cutting and cooking charts and a guide for condiments and wines that complement lamb dishes. Interspersed with the recipes are tidbits of humor and history regarding lamb.

The cookbook sells for $10.95 and is published by Culinary Arts Ltd. If you cannot find the cookbook in your area, contact Culinary Arts Ltd. P.O. Box 2157, Lake Oswego, Oregon 97035 or call (503) 639-4549.

Here are some recipes from the cookbook.

SUNNY LEMON CHOPS

Lemon juice tenderizes lamb and adds a sparkle to the flavor of the meat. A simple green salad and fresh wheat rolls or crusty bread would complete this easy, yet elegant, supper. 4 servings.

8 loin or rib lamb chops, 1- to 2-inches-thick, well trimmed
1 tablespoon lemon-pepper
2 fresh lemons, cut into quarters
2 tablespoons fresh oregano, minced or 1 tablespoon dried

Preheat broiler or light the barbecue. Season chops with lemon-pepper. Place them on the grill and cook to desired doneness. When done, remove to a platter. Squeeze quartered lemons over each chop and sprinkle the oregano over tops.

Jill Stanford Warren, author of "Lamb Country Cooking," is a great supporter of lamb and has included recipes from friends, family, lamb producers, and cooking contest winners. She interjects bits of historical information about lamb.

GARDEN SHANKS

Shanks are like little legs of lamb — and you can allow one per person. This is a delicious slow-cooking way to enjoy them. Just add hot biscuits for a meal to remember. 4 servings.

4 lamb shanks
1 lemon, cut in quarters
½ cup flour, divided
1 teaspoon lemon pepper
¼ cup light olive oil
10½-ounce can condensed, low-sodium beef broth
1 cup water
1 medium yellow onion, chopped
4 carrots, peeled and cut into chunks
4 stalks celery, peeled and cut into chunks

Rub each shank with a lemon quarter. Mix the flour (less 2 tablespoons) and lemon pepper together. Dredge shanks in seasoned flour. Heat oil in a heavy skillet or deep casserole dish. Brown shanks quickly over a hot burner.

Pour beef broth over shanks. Cover skillet and simmer slowly over low heat for 2 hours or until the meat is fork-tender. Add water, as needed, and set aside.

Stir reserved 2 tablespoons flour into liquid in pan and cook until thickened. Return shanks to gravy and add vegetables. Recover skillet and bake in 350 degree oven for 1½ hours. Remove bones and serve meat with the vegetables and gravy.

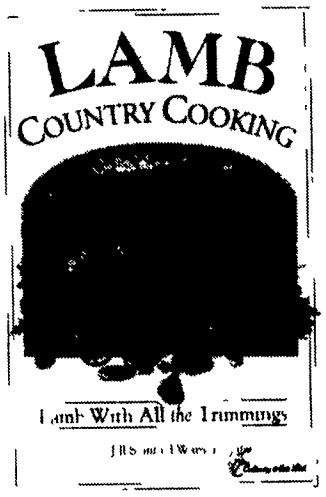
LAMB IN SUITCASES

My mother was nothing if not inventive. Faced with a summer garden that got out of hand and some ground lamb, which we always seemed to have in the freezer, she would simple combine it all into something tasty. This was a favorite. 6 servings.

1½ pounds ground lamb
¾ cup raw rice
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon allspice
½ cup tomato paste, thinned with 2 tablespoons water
12 summer squash or 4 small eggplants or 6 medium zucchini squash
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 garlic clove, crushed
3 ripe tomatoes, chopped
2 tablespoons fresh mint, washed and chopped
Parmesan cheese, freshly grated

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Mix lamb, rice, seasonings, and tomato paste together. Wash vegetables and remove stems. Scoop out insides to make cases. Fill vegetable cases with lamb mixture. Stand cases upright or lay them in a deep baking dish. Mix lemon juice, garlic, tomatoes and mint together. Spoon mixture over tops of cases. Fill dish with water to cover the bottom half of the vegetable cases (this prevents scorching and steams the vegetables).

Bake for 1 hour. Just before serving, sprinkle freshly grated Parmesan cheese over tops of the cases.



The cookbook has 128 pages of recipes. Few recipes call for ingredients that you don't have in your pantry.

'Best Of Friends' Offers More Than A Good Time

LORETTA GOLDEN
Cambria Co. Correspondent

I saw a child who could only crawl mount a horse and sit up tall.
Put it through degrees of paces and laugh at the wonder on our faces.
I saw a child born into strife,
Take up and hold the reins of life and that same child was heard to say,
Thank God for showing me the way. . .
John Anthony Davies

MINERAL POINT (Cambria Co.) — "Best of Friends" is a non-profit group, affiliated with the 4-H program in Cambria County. The above verse appears on the front of their printed brochure. The verse reflects the basic premise of "Best of Friends" who provide therapeutic horseback riding for individuals who are either mentally, physically, or emotionally challenged.

The program has been in existence since 1983 in Cambria County. During the past six years the group has been located at Rose Hill Stables, Mineral Point RD, which has an indoor riding arena. Previous to this, they were located at the Triple R Ranch in Nicktown.

Rose Hill, owned and operated by Jerry and Sharon Varner, board the horses for the organization. The Varner's daughter, Heidi, is the volunteer logkeeper for the riding program. Karen Stickler, volunteer coordinator of "Best of Friends" credits the Varners with being very accommodating. Because of the indoor riding facilities, Karen's job is a little easier — alternate scheduling is not necessary due to inclement weather. When the weather permits, outdoor trail rides are featured.

Karen, a resident of Vinco, has been the organization's volunteer coordinator for the past 12 years. The board of directors, oversees the basic operation of the group. Karen schedules the instructors, as well as more than 70 volunteers.

A record of stirrup size is kept for each rider. The horse that best fits the needs of each individual rider is assigned. Scheduling of lessons is done with keeping in mind the needs of each rider and the parent's work schedule. Sometimes Karen and the instructors have to do a lot of "juggling" to make everything work smoothly each week.

The Cambria County program is unique in the respect that it is a total volunteer effort. At the present time there are five instructors: Cathy Homer, Lois Headrick, Kim Pesarchic, Debbie Druzak, and Joe Bennett. These instructors are all familiar with horses and have attended the intensive training program for therapeutic riding in State College. They also screen prospective horses for the program.

Jenna Morgan, age 8, of Patton, PA grinning from "ear to ear" after her riding lesson. (Jenna has cerebral palsy.)

Leader Sherri Jarabak, and "side-walkers" Denise Farabaugh and Kelli Bartlebaugh with rider Andrea Damin, age 12, of Ebensburg. (Andrea and Kim are twins.)

Kim Damin, age 12, of Ebensburg, mounting "Job." With her are instructors, Cathy Homer and Lois Headrick.

Amanda Lacko, age 12, of Summerhill, atop "Yankee." According to her mother, Amanda, who is autistic, has developed a better sense of balance and posture because of the therapeutic horseback riding.

The volunteers are the backbone of the organization and Karen and the other instructors think quite highly of them. The only requirement is that they be at least 14 years old and have a willingness to work. Horse experience is not necessary but only those who have experience with horses can train to be leaders. Others are "side-walkers." Each rider requires three volunteers — leader and two "side-walkers."

Short training sessions are conducted for anyone who wishes to be a volunteer. Most of the teenage volunteers not only can fulfill their school or church service hour requirements but also come away with a good sense of accomplishment. Volunteers are also used to groom and tack the horses before the sessions and to care for them afterwards.

Another unique feature of the Cambria County-based program is that it encompasses more than just county residents. Due to the fact that this type of organization is not available in all areas of the state, some riders travel quite a distance to participate — in Cambria County, some riders have come from as far away as Indiana and Osceola Mills.

Horseback riding is thought to be one of the best forms of therapeutic recreation for handicapped persons. Besides helping to build self-confidence, it also strengthens and relaxes muscles, improves posture, balance, and coordination — in a way that is fun for the individual.

Riding also gives the handicapped person a feeling of complete freedom and mobility. One parent was quite pleased after her wheelchair-bound son went on an outdoor trail ride. The boy could talk of nothing else for days — how nice the woods smelled, and how pretty and green everything was. For a short while, he was just like everyone else and his horse provided him with the necessary mobility.

Gaye Lacko, of Summerhill, has a 12-year-old autistic daughter, Amanda. Amanda has been a member of "Best of Friends" for four years. According to her mother, Amanda has had success with following directions, increased her attention span, and improved her posture. Gaye attributes this to the hard work of the staff of "Best of Friends." Amanda has also achieved marked improvement in hand-eye coordination. The "fun" therapy for this is done while carrying an egg on a spoon and putting rings on a peg — both while on horseback.

Twelve-year-old twins, Andrea and Kim Damin of Ebensburg, are enrolled in the program for the first year. Their mother, Janet, remarked that the twins really seem to like the movement while riding the horses and they thoroughly enjoy their riding sessions. Terry Morgan, Patton area resident, brings eight-year-old daughter, Jenna. Jenna, who has cerebral palsy, enjoys the program and her mother feels that Jenna really appreciates the mobility. She also stated that Jenna looks forward to each Monday (the day on which she goes horseback riding). Another parent said that her child is envied by his peers because he takes riding lessons. This is something that none of the others in the neighborhood do and the distinction makes this child "special."

Currently, there are 24 riders involved in the program. Because it is a 4-H program there is a minimum age of eight and all riders are considered to be 4-H members. There is no upper age limit. The riders' fee is $10 per session with the summer program consisting of 10 sessions. In the fall, two more sessions for each rider will be offered on Saturdays. All fees are used for boarding the horses. Members of the board are always looking for donations from groups or individuals to help cover the costs of "boarding" or to "sponsor" the rider if there is a "need."

"Best of Friends" owns three horses: "Job," "Yankee," and "Lady." Instructor Cathy Homer, who donated the first horse to the group, points out that when the group looks for a new horse there is a rigorous screening process.

(Turn to Page B15)

'Best Of Friends'

They look at the horse with an eye for its gentleness, "unflappability," and the ease with which it is handled. Often, a horse which has been a children's pet, is well socialized and generally makes a good therapeutic riding horse. She would like to see the distinction "TRH" — therapeutic riding horse placed after the names of these horses. This would easily indicate to therapeutic riding groups that a particular horse has had much specialized training.

The participants in "Best of Friends" are preparing for a horse show to be held at Rose Hill Stables on August 20. This will give the riders an opportunity to "show off" in front of family and friends. The horse show will be complete with trophies and certificates for all participants.

Both Karen Stricker and Cathy Homer have seen the benefits that the riders have received from this therapeutic riding program. Besides physical benefits, there are psychological and social ones as well. Motivation is increased, there is some social interaction with other riders, volunteers, and instructors, and some riders form special attachments with the horses.

Over the years some of the participants in the program have gone on to regular riding lessons. Karen has a favorite quote, author unknown, which she feels best describes the healing process that is accomplished through "Best of Friends": "The outside of a horse is good for the inside of a man's soul."

For more information on "Best of Friends" or a similar organization in your county, contact your local Extension Office.

Cabbage Crop Ready For Consumers

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Consumers can obtain fresh cabbage by visiting local farm markets and roadside stands between now and December, according to Agriculture Secretary Charles C. Brosius.

"Our family farms have produced a very good crop of cabbage this year," Brosius said. "Both red and green varieties are entering their peak season right now." He noted that the state is ranked 12th in the nation for cabbage production.

"Select cabbage with firm, compact heads that are free of yellow, wilted or splitting leaves. Avoid cutting cabbage until just before you are going to use it," Brosius said.

The Pennsylvania Vegetable Marketing and Research Program sponsors research projects that help to improve the quality and overall production of cabbage and other vegetables in Pennsylvania. The program also sponsors efforts to promote the sale of Pennsylvania-grown vegetables in foreign and domestic markets.

Copies of a consumer's guide listing the locations of Pennsylvania farm markets by county can be obtained by contacting the department's Bureau of Market Development, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17110-9408. The telephone number is (717) 787-5086.

Lori Evans Reigns As Maryland Farm Queen

KAREN BUTLER
Maryland Correspondent

FREDERICK, Md. — Lori Evans of Oakland is Maryland's new Farm Queen. The young lady from Garrett County edged out other contestants at this year's pageant, held Sunday evening to kick off the 114th Maryland State Fair. She will reign over the 10-day fair, which runs through September 4. Lori is the daughter of Gary and Linda Evans.

Nineteen young ladies vied for the title relinquished by outgoing queen Jami Todd. Bobbie Jo Eaton of Caroline County was crowned first runner-up. Other farm royalty selected included Frederick County's Autumn Dee Guyton, selected as second runner-up, St. Mary's County Farm Queen Rebecca Johnson, who took third runner-up, and Harford County Queen Katrina Fischer as fourth runner-up.

Maryland Farm Bureau President C. William Knill was on hand to remind the crowd that Maryland has a tradition; it is always a hot, steamy night when the pageant is held. And this year proved no exception.

The contest is sponsored by the MFB and the Maryland State Fair. Sandra Pinckney, anchor at News Channel 2, served as master of ceremonies.

"I wish the world was full of these kinds of girls. They were all fantastic," said judge Timothy Buskey. Buskey, one of three judges given the difficult task of selecting a winner, is area director of programs and policy for the American Farm Bureau Federation. Other judges were Michele Awad, Ag in the Classroom coordinator for Virginia Farm Bureau Federation, and Alison Cowan, director of field services for the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau.

Lori Evans lives on her family's 750-acre cattle farm in Maryland's westernmost county. The family has a 65-head black angus breed cow herd, 36 mixed breed sheep, 7 landrace pigs, and 26 chickens. They grow corn, oats, and hay on the farm, and have 140 acres of pasture. Gary's brother Richard is a partner in the Evans Farms operation.

In addition to her daily chores of feeding animals and cleaning pig pens, the farmer's daughter helps wherever she is needed. She rakes and bales hay, assists with calving and at lambing time, and cleans buildings.

The 17-year-old is a senior at Southern High School, where she is an honor roll student. She plays volleyball and is a member of the National Honor Society. An 8-year member of the Red House 4-H Club, Lori is currently club secretary. This year she took a pig, a steer, and a lamb to the county fair.

"The money from my animals at the fair goes toward my college education," said the fuuture mathematician.

John Butler of Maryland Farm Bureau coordinated the contest. The contest committee consisted of Holly Fleming, chairman, and members Fay Baase, Mary Teter, Rebeccah Lippy, Dawn Mister, Dorris Harris, and Laura Kaminski. Cora Widdowson, Chairman for MFB women, oversees the contest.

Rural White Teens Face Early Pregnancies

Washington, D.C. — Rural white teens are more likely to get pregnant than their urban white counterparts, but less likely than black urban teens, according to a Penn State study of rural American women.

The study also shows that rural white teens are more prone to marry early compared to either black or white urban adolescents, said Dr. Gretchen T. Cornwell, assistant professor of rural sociology and a research associate with the University's Population Research Institute.

"Our research indicates the large impact of residence and race on early family formation, especially in the case of premarital births," says Melonie Heron, graduate student in sociology and demography and an affiliate with the Population Research Institute.

Indeed, the study shows that black and white female adolescents living in rural areas are four or five times more likely to have a baby before marriage than urban white teenagers.

"We examined other variables such as school performance, work activity, dating behavior and household size and income," Cornwell notes. "Even when we take those into account, race and place of residence clearly play an important role in family formation among black and white adolescent women."

"It is well known that children born to young mothers are among those most vulnerable to poverty," Heron adds. "This study demonstrates to what degree this is a rural as well as an urban problem."

Cornwell and Heron presented the paper, "Social Origins and Social Institutions in the Transition to Adulthood of Rural American Women," (Aug. 20) at the annual meeting of the American Sociological Association in Washington, D.C.

Data for this study was taken from 1987-88 and 1992-93 figures from the National Survey of Families and Households. The Penn State researchers based their analysis on the experiences of 420 young women between the ages of 12 and 18 at the time of the first survey.

New Study Reveals Sewing May Be Good For Your Heart

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — A clinical study recently showed that women who sewed — both skilled and novice sewers — experienced a significant drop in heart rate and blood pressure when sewing.

Ruth Nierenberg of the Nimble Thimble, a sewing supply store in Lancaster, is not surprised by this finding.

"Our customers have always told us that they felt sewing was a relaxing pastime," Nierenberg said.

She is happy that others are recognizing sewing as a great stress buster. In recognition of September as National Sewing Month, The Nimble Thimble is offering a series of free sewing lessons.

"It's a great way to introduce people to the relaxing pastime of sewing," Nierenberg said.

Of the clinical study that indicates the positive, stress-reducing benefits gained from sewing, Nierenberg reported that the study was conducted in a controlled laboratory environment at a psychologist's office in New York City during the months of March and April.

Two groups of women — experienced sewers and nonsewers — were measured for blood pressure, heart rate, epidural skin response (perspiration and peripheral skin temperature.

A biofeedback method was used to monitor each woman while she engaged in five different leisure activities. The activities were rotated randomly in order to avoid and "order effect." The activities included playing a card game, painting with water colors, reading a paper, playing a hand-held video game, and sewing a simple project.

"The importance of a hobby or a creative pursuit cannot be over emphasized," said Dr. Robert Reiner, administrative director of Behavioral Associates in New York City and designer of the stress study for American Home Sewing & Craft Association.

"If we don't allow our bodies to rest from the pressures of everyday life, we are placing ourselves at risk for heart diseases or other illnesses. Creative activities and hobbies — like sewing — can help a person focus on something productive and get away from their worries for a while," Reiner said.

The free sewing classes are scheduled for Wednesday, September 13, 20, and 27 at 1:30 p.m. Participants may attend one or all of the scheduled classes, which includes lessons on sewing with elastic, using a serger, and quick and easy T-shirt construction.

Although The Nimble Thimble is situated in the city at 45 N. Market St., it is easy to find and plenty of parking is nearby. The sewing store is located in the Central Market Mall across from the Prince Street Parking Garage. Participants will receive a free parking pass.

The Nimble Thimble offers a series of free sewing lessons in recognition of National Sewing Month. A recent study reveals that sewing may be good for your heart because sewers participating in the study showed a significant drop in heart rate and blood pressure when compared to other leisure activities.

Somerset Fair Selects Fair Queen, Century Farm Recipients

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

MEYERSDALE (Somerset Co.) — When she became the "Fairest of the (Somerset County) Fair" Christy Croner, unlike her predecessor, was spared the ordeal of promenading through sawdust chips in a gorgeous gown and heels.

For the first time in recent history the contest was held where it was planned to be — on the stage in front of the grandstand, instead of inside the exhibitor's arena where a torrential, last minute washout sent frustrated coordinators scrambling to execute their only alternative.

Christy, first alternate Erica Walker, and other fair queen contestants, Corby Svonavec, Angela Yingling, Heidi McKenzie and Cherie Green, were interviewed by Grandpa Cratchet of the fair puppet show.

The elderly gentleman drove his flashy red wagon right up on the stage via a convenient ramp, then performed his ceremonial duties without ever exiting the vehicle. Mysterious, indeed, but highly entertaining.

Christy had to be almost everywhere at once after winning her crown. After all, the duties of a fair queen require her to be seen at as many events as possible.

"It's lots of fun," she said a few days later. "There is lots to do and see and lots of places to be at once," she laughed, adding, "and many people to meet."

Children caught her fancy, of course. She noticed how little girls were very admiring and didn't hesitate to approach her. All of them want to be a fair queen some day.

Little boys, as well, were fascinated, but Christy observed their shyness and reserve. Mostly, they would trail along behind her and say nothing.

An active 4-H'er of nine years, Christy belongs to two clubs. With Milksquirts she's done sewing projects and been a winner in the headline competition.

With the Valley 4-H Club, she has gone into riflery and shotgun and is now a marksman.

She's the daughter of Norman and Carol Croner and a junior at the Berlin-Brothersvalley High School, active in student council, SADD, Spanish Club and several sports.

She's a member of the Holy Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church of Berlin.

Thomas L. Baer, right, and wife, Dorothy, Somerset, RD4, receive the Century Farm plaque from Kenneth Mowry, left, Region 5 director of the Altoona office of the Pennsylvania Dept. of Agriculture. The Somerset County Farm has been in the Baer family since 1895. Mowry said there are 61 Century Farms in the state. The ceremony took place during the Somerset County Fair held recently in Meyersdale.

Samuel Poorbaugh, right, and wife Anna, center, from Glencoe, Somerset County receive the Century Farm plaque from Kenneth Mowry, Region 5 director of the Pennsylvania Dept. of Agriculture in Altoona. The presentation is made at the Somerset County Fair in Meyersdale. The Burbach Farm has been in the family since 1789.

Apple Dumpling Festival To Benefit Ephrata Cloister

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — The Ephrata Cloister Associates will hold the 15th annual Apple Dumpling Festival on the grounds of the Ephrata Cloister on Saturday, October 7.

In addition to homemade apple dumplings, this fundraiser will offer hot dogs, beef vegetable soup, and a variety of beverages. All of the proceeds from the event will be donated to the "Back to the Cloister Fund" that is used to purchase original Cloister artifacts for the permanent collections in the museum. While on the grounds, visitors are encouraged to tour the museum and the rare historic buildings.

Founded in 1732 by a German pietist mystic named Conrad Beissel, the Ephrata Cloister today retains perhaps the largest collection of Germanic medieval-style buildings constructed out of log and half-timber to be found anywhere in North America. The celibate orders who lived here between 1732 and 1813 practiced an austere lifestyle of self-discipline that emphasized spiritual rather than material goals. Married householder families who lived within a five-mile radius also contributed to the community's economy and later incorporated as the German Seventh Day Baptist Church. The site was acquired by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in 1941 and is today administered by the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission.

The Ephrata Cloister is located at the intersection of Route 272 and Route 322 in Ephrata. Individuals with disabilities who need special assistance or accommodation should call (717) 733-6600 or 733-4811 in advance to discuss their needs.

The next meeting will be held on September 26 at the home of Wendy Shane, Sweinhart Road, Boyertown. The topic for the evening will be "Getting Your Affairs in Order."

Jr. Grange Crowns Prince And Princess

SYLVAN HILLS — Shock. Happiness. Shock.

That pretty much sums up the emotions of Andrew Britcher, and Denise "Denny" Zug, the 1995-96 Junior Prince and Princess.

"I couldn't believe I won and then when I did I was happy," Britcher of Community Junior Grange in Perry County, said. "Then I was shocked again when I realized that the next time I saw my friends back home that I was going to tell them I am the prince."

"I couldn't believe I won because everyone on the court was just as good as I was," Zug of Walker Junior Grange, Juniata County, said, "and they were just as deserving to win. It was a shock, but I am very happy."

Those two emotions weren't the only ones evident this night at Junior Camp, held for the first time at Sylvan Hills Christian Camp in Centre County. There were mixed emotions as campers felt tears of joy for their friends that won, and tears of sorrow for their ones who didn't quite make it. There was disappointment written on the faces of the royalty members who also wanted to be prince or princess just as much as Britcher and Zug.

There was the past Junior Princess, Sara Adams, clutching the tiara, knowing that she was about to relinquish it; then finally breaking down and crying when her parents publicly gave her a gift for making them proud that she was the Junior Princess the past year. There was also the sinking feeling that another Junior Camp was about to come to an end as the tiara and sashes were passed on to two new 14-year-old campers.

For the next year, Britcher and Zug will represent the Junior Grange at various Grange and non-Grange functions including Grange meetings, the state and national conventions and the PA Farm Show, among other events.

Having the opportunity to serve the Grange is something Britcher and Zug weren't about to pass up.

"I would really like to see the Grange go international," Britcher, the son of Paul and Deb Britcher Jr., said. "I feel it would make the world a better place to live just as the Grange helps people who live here."

"I love to travel and go places and being the princess will allow me to go to a lot of places," Zug, the daughter of Art and Dina Zug, said, "and to meet a lot of new people and make new friends."

Britcher and Zug have been active in their Junior Granges.

Britcher, who will be in the ninth grade at Newport High School, Perry County, currently serves as master and has been overseer, lecturer, steward, assistant steward and gatekeeper and held the Region G prince title twice in the Grange.

Britcher also participated in the drill at the 1994 Junior Jamboree and will be an assistant steward in the drill at National Grange in Harrisburg this fall. Britcher's non-Grange hobbies are geology, mythology, 4-H, raising race horses, high school chorus, student council and football.

Zug has served as master of her Junior Grange and has competed in numerous Junior Talent Shows in the past, having placed first. She is currently the Grange's Region G Junior Princess. Outside the Grange, Zug's hobbies include 4-H, sports, playing flute in Juniata High School's marching and concert bands and playing on the field hockey and track teams.

Prince finalists were Brandon Treichler, Virginville Junior Grange, Berks County; Matt Keller, Kutztown Junior Grange, Berks County; and Jay Peffer and Chris Rodgers, both of Plain Grove Junior Grange, Lawrence County. Princess finalists were Wendy Becker, Pleasant Hill Junior Grange, Cambria County; Niki Cree, Oliver Junior Grange, Perry County; Carrie Rodgers, Plain Grove Junior Grange, Lawrence County; Amy Jo Weida, Marion Junior Grange, Berks County. First runner-ups were Peffer and Cree.

The Junior Grange is for youths 5-14 and involves members in fun activities like camp, state and national projects and contests, developing leadership skills and performing community service work. The PA State Grange is the largest rural, community service and agricultural organization dedicated to improving the lives of Pennsylvanians.

Denise Zug and Andrew Britcher are the Junior Grange Prince and Princess.

Goat Milking Contest At 4-H Fair

This year's 4-H Fair had much excitement, including a celebrity goat milking contest.

The celebrities present were Richard Buckman, Montgomery County commissioner; Mario Mele, Montgomery County commissioner; Tim Canfield, banking officer at Harleysville National Bank; Ann Falco, representing Town and Country; U. S. Rep. Jon Fox; Rich Gunning, representing WNPV; Pennsylvania Rep. John Lawless; Harvey Portner, commissioner, third ward; Dr. Carole Spahr, superintendent of Pequea Valley School District; Benjamin Reese, representing The Lansdale Reporter; and Albert Augustine, district justice.

Two milking heats decided the champion and reserve champion. Commissioner Mario Mele took the champion title with 18 ounces, followed by Rep. Lawless with 12 ounces.

For more information about the 4-H Program in Montgomery County, call the 4-H Center at (610) 489-4315.

Other events at the fair included the goat show.

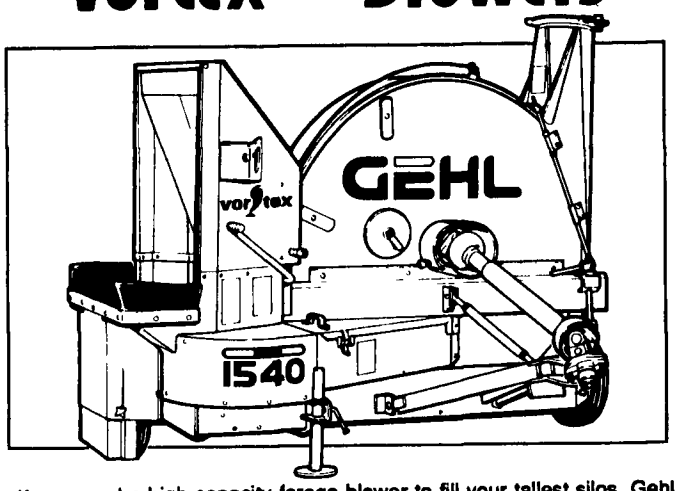
GEHL

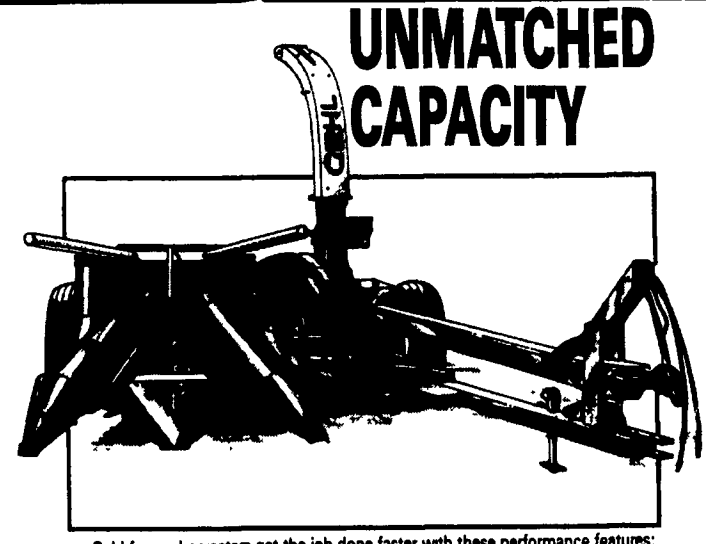
"Vortex™" Blowers



If you need a high-capacity forage blower to fill your tallest silos, Gehl Vortex blowers will help get your silo-filling done in short order.

- Three models - Your choice of 540 or 1,000 rpm operation.
- Twin spinners - Rifle material into the blower fan at nearly 35 mph.
- Twin-sided fan disc - Paddles on both sides shoot the crop up the pipe in a nearly continuous flow.
- Split rim sheets - Feature a replaceable inner liner for longer life and lower maintenance costs.
- Many convenience features - Swing-away blower outlet, air vents, adjustable left tire, right tire guard, wide hopper, removable tunnel covers and dual water inlets.

UNMATCHED CAPACITY



Gehl forage harvesters get the job done faster with these performance features:

- Exclusive Auto-Max Load-Sensing System – Increase capacity by up to 20%. Lets you operate at top capacity without the fear of downtime due to overloading.
- Metal-Stop Metal Detector – Prevents machine damage and hardware disease.
- In-head Hydraulic Knife Sharpener – Lets you sharpen knives in the field.
- Patented One-Sided Cutterbar Adjustment – Makes adjusting the cutterbar quick and easy.

Sewing Smart Workshops

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Clotilde, nationally known sewing authority, will present two lecture-demonstrations on October 17 and 18 at the Lebanon Valley Agricultural Center at Cornwall and Rocherty Roads.

Clotilde travels 30 weeks per year teaching how to achieve the elusive look of expensive ready-to-wear at home. In addition, she is the author of Sew Smart and chairman of the board of her mail-order sewing notions catalog company, Clotilde, Inc.

Both programs will provide easy, common-sense ways to avoid the loving hands-at-home look and are appropriate for someone who has sewn three months or 30 years.

Time Saver Designer Solutions to Common Problems will be presented on Tuesday, October 17 from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Clotilde will discuss how to eliminate facings on jackets, jewel necklines, and sleeveless blouses; buttonholes — which direction, where to put them and when to omit them; "must remember" tips before buying your fabric and before cutting fabric; easy pleats and tucks; how to get the flattest collar notch; underlining tips; pressing techniques and essential tools.

On Wednesday, October 18 from 9 a.m. to noon, Clotilde will present a Potpourri of Designer Techniques. This program will include simple pocket changes; couture sleeve vent change; hows and whys of pattern sizes and designer ease, waistbands; correct sleeve and jacket lengths; finishing facings in sleeveless garments; how to reduce excess sleeve ease; eliminating bumps at collar band edges.

Attendance is open to the public at $20 for each program. A lower price of $35 will apply to those who register for both the evening and morning programs. Reduced prices are also available for Lebanon County 4-H leaders and members and Lebanon County Sewing Guild members.

Clotilde's appearance is being sponsored by the Lebanon County Sewing Guild which is interested in updating and increasing sewing skills.

At the age of six, Clotilde picked up the needle and hasn't stopped sewing since. After graduation from Miami University of Ohio, she worked in the wardrobe department of 20th Century Fox Film Studio where she learned valuable manufacturer's techniques of garment construction. She continued to learn designer tricks and techniques while sewing commercially for exclusive Beverly Hills boutiques. For two years, she was host of her own cable TV program. Since 1977, she has crossed the country giving seminars and in-service programs to extension groups, schools, fabric shops and trade show organizations.

Pre-registration is required on a first come, first served basis. Registration deadline is September 30 or when the meeting room is full. For a registration form, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Lebanon County Sewing Guild — Clotide, 926 Willow Lane, Lebanon, PA 17046. For more information, call (717) 274-1197.

ANSWER — Jean Mitchell, Lewisburg, wanted a recipe for whole wheat bread like that sold at Green Ridge Country Market in Mifflinburg. Thanks to Anne Wiegle of Pottstown for sending a recipe that she said originally came from a commune in California in the 1960s. The bread is heavy and moist and good for sandwiches. For white bread substitute the whole wheat for unbleached flour.

Tassajara Yeast Bread

4 large loaves

6 cups warm water
2 packages dry yeast
Dissolve yeast in warm water, then add:
¾ cup raw or brown sugar
2 cups dry powdered milk
7-9 cups whole wheat flour
Mix, then let stand one hour in a warm place to make a sponge.
Add 2½ tablespoons sea salt (or regular)
¾ cup to 1 cup oil or melted butter
6-8 cups flour
Knead, then let rise 50 minutes in a warm place. Knead again, let rise 40 minutes. Form into loaves; let rise 20 minutes. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour.
Note: The rising times are for a very warm moist place. In cooler temperatures, the bread will take much longer to rise.

ANSWER — Marian Mosemann, Summit Hill, wanted recipes for pickles made without salt. Thanks to Lois Martin, Waynesboro, for sending a recipe she enjoys.

Red (Or Green) Cinnamon Pickle

Check time of day as these pickles require precise timing. Peel, cut out centers of large cucumber, cut in rings, strips or 1x1-inch cubes.
Soak 2 gallons pickle pieces in mixture made from the following:
2 cups lime
8 quarts water
Soak pickles in mixture for 18-20 hours. Drain and wash well. Simmer pickles 2 hours in the following mixture:
1 cup vinegar
½ -ounce red or green food coloring
1 tablespoon alum
Water to cover. Drain. Make syrup of the following:
2 cups vinegar
2 cups water
10 cups sugar
½ teaspoon oil of cinnamon
½ ounce red or green food color
Bring to a boil. Pour over the cucumber pieces. Drain off and reheat for three days. On the fourth day, pack pickles in jars. Cover with syrup. Process in hot water bath for 10 minutes.

McAllister Family Has Banner Day

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — The 1995 Chester County 4-H Swine Show and Sale was held once again at New Holland Sales Stables.

Judge Keith Bryan had a challenging evening as 79 hogs were entered.

Grand champion market hog of this year's show went to Phillip McAllister of Spring City. The 235-pound hog was purchased by Hatfield Quality Meats for $3.10/pound. The reserve grand champion was exhibited by Mandy Stoltzfus of Geigertown for the second year in a row. The reserve champion weighed 250 pounds and sold to New Holland Sales Stables for $2.35/pound.

The grand champion trio was exhibited by Nathan Howe of Downingtown. The 720-pound trio was purchased by New Holland Sales Stables for $.75/pound. The reserve champion trio, weighing 700 pounds, was exhibited by Jonathan Howe of Downingtown and was purchased by Hatfield Quality Meats for $.65/pound. Champion lightweight was exhibited by Conrad Smoker of Honey Brook. The 220-pound hog was purchased by New Holland Sales Stables for $.55/pound. Phillip McAllister had a banner day, also showing the reserve champion heavyweight at 255 pounds. This hog was purchased by New Holland Sales Stables for $.65/pound.

Reserve champion middleweight was exhibited by Mandy Stoltzfus, giving her an excellent show day. Kochel Equipment purchased the 230-pound hog for $1/pound. Kasey McAllister of Spring City exhibited the reserve champion lightweight. The 210-pound hog was purchased for $.70/pound by Keystone Farm Credit of Avondale.

Champion senior showman was Kasey McAllister of Spring City and reserve champion senior showman was Jonathan Howe of Downingtown for the second year in a row. Champion junior showman was Julie Howe of Downingtown and reserve champion junior showman was Phillip McAllister of Spring City.

The judge and the 4-H Leaders added a new twist to this year's showmanship contest. The champion and reserve champion seniors and juniors competed against each other for an overall champion. Although the competition was very tough, champion overall was awarded to the champion junior showman, Julie Howe.

Trophies will be presented to these individuals at the annual Livestock Awards Banquet in February, courtesy of the Lancaster-Chester County Pork Producers Council. The sale averaged $.71 on 79 hogs sold. Volume buyer of the day was again Hatfield Packing.

Three 4-H members donated the proceeds from their hogs to the 4-H Center Building Fund. These members were Jason Wagner, Eric Olson Marsh, and Tom Marsh. Total money raised for the center from this endeavor totaled $624.75.

For more information about 4-H programs, contact the 4-H office at (610) 696-3500.

Farmland Protection Programs Need Federal Assistance

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Citing funding shortages in state and local farmland protection programs, American Farmland Trust reported that states are not keeping pace with the need to conserve farmland from urban sprawl and called on the federal government for greater support.

In its study, "Winning Friends, Losing Ground," AFT said that while state and local governments have made significant progress since 1980 — spending $664 million to save 400,000 acres of farmland — their efforts have not been enough. For every farmer compensated for voluntarily agreeing to limit development on their land, six others must be turned away.

Three acres of prime and unique farmland — the most fertile, least environmentally sensitive land — are being urbanized for every acre saved. The national farmland conservation group said that, overall, the nation is still losing more than 1 million acres annually.

"The states already have made a substantial investment in farmland protection," said Edward Thompson Jr., AFT's director of public policy and author of the report. "To do more, they will need the kind of help that only the federal government can provide."

Since 1990, Congress has invested only $10 million through the Farms for the Future program on state and local farmland protection assistance — 200 times less than it spends each year on soil conservation programs. As part of its 1995 Farm Bill proposals, AFT is advocating a shift of $60 million a year to Farms for the Future. Such a move would double the farmland protection capacity of states and localities, yet represent less than 5 percent of USDA erosion control spending.

Southern Cove Power Reunion Set

NEW ENTERPRISE (Bedford Co.) — Watch history come to life on Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 16 - 17, when the fifth annual Southern Cove Power Reunion is held on the grounds of the former Replogle School.

The reunion was started in 1991 by a group of central Pennsylvania machinery collectors to preserve agriculture's past for the enjoyment of adults and the education of our youth.

The two-day event will offer a unique opportunity for young and old to witness firsthand the operation of numerous pieces of farm equipment. For the first time, spectators will be able to see a 1870's Birdsell seed cleaner along with many other pieces operating daily.

Highlights of the reunion will be parades at 3 p.m. on both days. Musical entertainment will round out Saturday night's fun and a church service will be held at 8:30 a.m. Sunday. Food will be available both days by the Southern Cove Fire Co.

Nearly 100 antique tractors will be on display along with several steam traction engines dating from the early 1900s and a 1929 Rumly Oil Pull. Also included will be a complete line of hit and miss engines. Both days will be filled with live demonstrations beginning at 10 a.m. daily.

Planned for the grounds surrounding the old school house will be demonstrations of a rock crusher, shingle mill, ensilage cutters, a corn husker, threshing machines, a steam-powered well driller, and a saw mill, with plenty of power provided by the tractors, steamers, and engines.

The former Replogle School is located in New Enterprise along Route 869. Watch for signs.

Admission to the show will be $1 with no charge for children under 12. There is plenty of free parking.

Pioneer Announces New Sales Force

DES MOINES, Iowa — As part of a company-wide effort to more effectively meet the needs of livestock producers and other end-users of seed and microbial products, Pioneer Hi-Bred, International, Inc., Nutrition and Industry Markets, has made the following management changes:

Dr. Roger Crum has been named director, feed additives. Lionel Lane has been appointed national sales manager, Probios® brand microbial products. Dale Monthei has taken on new responsibilities as Probios product manager.

"We're increasing the company's resources to the direct-fed microbial product line in order to better service the market," said Lane, who has had sales and marketing responsibilities within the product line since 1980. "We will now be managing distribution nationwide through a new, select group of sales representatives specializing in the animal health industry. This will allow us to put more full-time people and manhours toward sales and marketing efforts, both in the office and out in the field."

Gray Leaf Spot Returns With Vengeance

DEKALB, Ill. — Scientists at Dekalb Genetics Corporation said that Cercospora zeae-maydis, the cause of gray leaf spot, will be an important factor affecting the corn crop this year. 1995 could be the fifth consecutive increase for the disease which attacks corn and leaves farmers with substantially reduced yields.

"If this 20-year trend continues," said Dr. Dave Smith, director of corn research operations for Dekalb, "gray leaf spot will have become established throughout the Midwest."

The recent hot and humid conditions have allowed gray leaf spot infections to flourish. "The incidence of gray leaf spot often appears to increase rapidly after summer rains," said Dr. Jim Perkins, Dekalb plant pathologist. If conditions are not favorable for the fungus, says Perkins, it remains dormant during periods of dry weather and then can become active when humid, overcast conditions return. Relative humidity is probably more critical than any other single factor except dew in promoting the severity of the disease. Extended periods of overcast days and high relative humidity also allow the disease to develop severe levels of infection.

The disease has been associated with the practice of minimum tillage, particularly where corn follows corn as the primary crop. The use of minimum tillage has allowed the disease to become firmly established in areas where conventional tillage had previously reduced the disease's potential as being a problem. By becoming established in the major corn growing areas, gray leaf spot has been able to move from the reduced tillage situations to become a problem in fields where traditional conventional tillage practices are used.

It is clear that most of the damaging epidemics of gray leaf spot occur in areas where reduced tillage situations occur, says Smith. In fields with a history of gray leaf spot problems, more frequent rotations to non-host crops such as soybeans and small grains could be employed. Experience with C. zeae-maydis indicats the fungus will not survive for extended periods in plant debris. Although the fungus can overwinter at least one year in plant debris, long term exposure to the elements resulting from rotation will reduce the ability of the fungus to persist longer. Although the positive benefits of minimum tillage under the appropriate circumstances are unquestioned, the selection of a tillage practice must be evaluated carefully with regard to the balance between the conservation of soil and energy and the liabilities of potential disease and insect problems.

"Plant resistance appears to be the best means to control gray leaf spot," says Smith. Dekalb has been evaluating its products for gray leaf spot resistance for more than two decades. During that time selection for higher levels of resistance have contributed to the options Dekalb presently has in their mix of hybrids. Hybrids such as DK527, DK546, DK566, DK616, DK626, DK642, DK676, DK706. and DK714 offer above average resistance to gray leaf spot. DK683 and DK689 are the gray leaf spot resistant standards of comparison in their market areas.

AgriPro Adds Two Alfalfas To Product Line

SHAWNEE MISSION, Kan. — A pair of important new additions have been made to AgriPro Seeds' alfalfa product line for the upcoming planting season. One is the result of an advanced plant breeding technique that results in high levels of seedling disease resistance and the other is a semi-dormant variety with exceptional nematode resistance.

"AgriPro alfalfa breeders are responsible for many of the major advancements in this important forage crop, and they've done it by responding to grower needs for practical, profitable innovations," said Milton Allen, president of AgriPro Seeds, Inc.

Depend+EV, a variety with strong, early vigor, is the result of a screening and selection process that produces exceptional seedling resistance to Phytophthora and Aphanomyces, two of the most significant fungus diseases that attack alfalfa. Varieties that survive this screening technique exhibit outstanding early vigor and establish healthy stands under conditions that will devastate even conventionally resistant varieties.

Depend+EV has a fall dormancy rating of 4, and adapts well to areas where four cuttings are common and severe winters are likely. It has a high leaf-to-stem ratio, resists leaphopper yellowing and produces high quality forage.

Robust is a semi-dormant (fall dormancy 5) alfalfa with bred-in protection against Columbia, Northern and Southern root knot nematodes and stem nematodes. This results in excellent performance under irrigation and on light, porous soils. Robust has better winter survival than most semi-dormant varieties, and possesses resistance to Phytophthora root rot and Verticillium wilt for persistent yields over long rotations.

The AgriPro alfalfa lineup includes a number of popular varieties, including Defiant, Demand, Dominator and Cut'N'Graze, one of the first true dual-purpose haying and grazing varieties.

Case Launches Retrofit ROPS Program

RACINE, Wis. — A new rollover protective structure (ROPS) program from Case Corporation seeks to help owners of older model tractors prevent catastrophes in the event of tractor rollovers.

"Rollovers cause more than 50 percent of all tractor-related farm fatalities," said Steve Burdette, Case Corporation manager, product safety. "But if a tractor is equipped with a ROPS and the operator uses a seatbelt, virtually all deaths from rollovers can be prevented."

Under the new program, nearly 100 versions of factory-engineered and approved ROPS and seatbelt packages are available at Case IH dealers for most Case, Case IH, International Harvester and David Brown tractors dating back to the late 1960s when tractors were first designed to accommodate ROPS.

"Case has included ROPS as standard eqipment on all Case IH tractors since 1985," Burdette said. "With this ROPS retrofit program, we're encouraging our customers who own older model tractors to take advantage of a safety upgrade that could save lives."

Here's dramatic proof of the "zone of protection" offered by ROPS. This dummy "survived" an overturn staged by Case safety engineers to demonstrate the effectiveness of ROPS.

Soybean Summit Offers Industry Chance To Discuss Future

CHICAGO, Ill — Nearly 70 soybean industry representatives attended the recent U.S. Soybean Vision Forum held Aug. 17-18 at the Hyatt Regency O'Hare in Chicago. In a first-of-its-kind meeting, representatives from nearly all aspects of the U.S. soybean industry came together to discuss the future of the industry in a changing global market.

The Soybean Industry Vision grew out of a Soybean Industry Vision Initiative began a year ago by state soybean leaders who recognized that there was a need for cooperation and unity if the U.S. soybean industry was to achieve its full potential. The goal of the Soybean Industry Vision is to help the U.S. regain lost market share and get focused on a future of profitable growth for all industry segments. Consensus following the meeting was that the Vision Committee's recommendations were a necessary move in the right direction.

"I don't think we hit a home run in our first at-bat, but I think that we're definitely on base," said Gary Riedel, Centralia, Mo. soybean producer and chairman of the Vision Committee. "We had broad-based industry support for the work of the Vision Committee, and there was consensus on the critical elements needed to achieve the vision, and that in itself is a major step."

Industry representatives including producers, processors, exporters, private seed companies, end users and state and national producer staff were in attendance at the two day meeting. Participants first reviewed the Vision statement and its critical elements of success assembled by the Vision Committee, and provided suggested strategies designed to help make the Vision a success. Next, small groups reported their findings for suggested changes and strategies for success, and those suggestions were voted on by the entire assembly. In closing, an open forum discussion was held to voice concerns and provide future guidance for the Vision movement.

New Beef Organization Forms

SAN ANTONIO, Texas — The National Cattlemen's Beef Association (NCBA) is the name of the new beef organization formed as the result of the consolidation of the National Cattlemen's Association and the National Live Stock and Meat Board/Beef Industry Council. The new organization also incorporates many aspects of the Beef Board through a joint operating agreement.

Members of the new organization's transition executive committee decided on the new name during their first meeting here. The transition executive committee, which includes members of the executive committees of both NCA and Meat Board along with representatives of the Beef Board, U.S. Meat Export Federation, and American National CattleWomen, will oversee the transition to the new organization representing all segments of the industry by February 1, 1996.

In other action, directors elected California cattleman John Lacey and Arizona cattleman Jim Webb as co-chairmen of the transition executive committee. Lacey, a former NCA president and member of the Meat Board executive committee, and Webb, a former Beef Board chairman, will serve until regular elections of NCBA take place during the organization's first stakeholders' congress, slated for January 30, 1996.

Ciba Introduces Chemistry To Control Diseases

PITTSBURGH — Attendees at the 1995 American Phytopathology Society (APS) were introduced to Ciba Crop Protection's latest innovation, Vangard®, a foliar fungicide currently being developed for cereals, grapes, vegetables and deciduous fruit.

The anilinopyrimidine compound (active ingredient cyprodinil) offers a new approach to fight a variety of diseases including leaf blight, grey mold, fruit brown rot, blossom blight, scab, eyespot and powdery mildew.

"Vangard represents a novel mode of action that shows no cross-insensitivity to other classes of fungicides," said Dr. Charles Pearson, disease control specialist at Ciba who presented data on the product at an APS session Aug. 16, 1995. "The fungicide is systemic and shows preventative and post-infection activity."

Pearson outlined how Vangard inhibits amino acid biosynthesis, which interferes with pathogen penetration. It also reduces pathogen sporulation in some cases.

Vangard is not currently registered for use or sale in the U.S. In Europe, the compound is used on fruit and various field crops. Initial U.S. registrations of Vangard are expected for almonds, apples and stonefruit in 1997; followed by labels for grapes, small fruits and vegetables. The existing data package shows that Vangard has an environmental safety advantage that makes it a candidate for registration and use in California, too.

Northrup King Announces Bt Corn Agreement

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — Northrup King Co. announced that Sandoz Seeds, Ltd. has reached an agreement in principle with Monsanto Company which supports company efforts to commercialize and market Bt corn. Northrup King is an operating company in Sandoz Seeds Division, part of the Sandoz, Ltd. group of Basel, Switzerland.

Bt corn is a biotechnology developed product that protects against damage from European corn borer, an insect that typically causes hundreds of millions of dollars of damage and losses for American corn farmers. The plants contain a gene from Bacillus thuringiensis, commonly known as Bt, a naturally occurring soil bacterium. The gene causes the plant to produce a protein which controls European corn borers, but in its intended use is harmless to beneficial insects and other species, including humans.

The agreement follows a Northrup King - Monsanto research collaboration dating back to the late 1980's under which Northrup King developed Bt corn hybrids. According to the terms of the agreement, Monsanto has granted Sandoz Seeds a worldwide license under various Monsanto patent and proprietary rights for corn and sweet corn. In addition to Northrup King, Sandoz Seeds affiliate Rogers Seed Co., Boise, Idaho, will benefit from the agreement.

"We are pleased to announce this agreement which reflects the valuable support by Monsanto during the development of our new elite hybrids with Bt," said Kent Schulze, president and CEO, Northrup King Co. Schulze went on to say, "We are satisfied that the results of the collaborative efforts will benefit our customers and farmers."

AJCA Solicits Research Proposals

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — Research proposals are now being solicited for projects addressing significant issues for the Jersey breed and Jersey milk producers.

Priorities for research funding are:

- Nutrition of high-producing Jerseys (particularly practical feeding methods to maximize production of valuable milk components);
- Factors affecting yield of products manufactured from Jersey milk;
- Factors affecting net income, longevity, and lifetime profit;
- Optimal young sire usage;
- Biological and economic efficiencies of Jerseys; and
- Factors affecting management of Jersey calves.

Research proposals will be evaluated by the AJCA Research Advisory Committee after the Dec. 1, 1995 submission deadline.

The Committee will forward its recommendations by Feb. 1, 1996 to the AJCA Board of Directors, which awards funds at its meeting in March.

The policy of the Foundation is to fund projects only from investment income, and to decline payment of overhead costs. Monies will be available for approved projects after April 1, 1996.

Evaluative criteria for submissions are (a) merit (e.g., potential to advance practical knowledge, creative approach to the problem), (b) competence (i.e., high probability of successful completion within the proposed time frame), and (c) relevance (e.g., problem derived from one of the areas of research priority).

Since its inception, the AJCC Research Foundation's competitive grants program has provided partial or full funding for approximately nine worthy projects each year. Awards averaged $4,700 per project in 1993, 1994 and 1995. More than $250,000 in grants have been awarded since 1988.

State Announces Potato Research Board Changes

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Agriculture Secretary Charles C. Brosius announced one new appointment and three reappointments to the Pennsylvania Potato Research Program Board.

Board members review research proposals and select projects to address pest and disease problems or choose improved plant varieties.

"We welcome our new board member, and thank those who will continue to serve," Brosius said. "Board members will work on behalf of Pennsylvania's potato farmers, who in 1994 produced over $29 million worth of potatoes on 19,000 acres."

The 11-member board includes 10 potato growers nominated by their fellow producers and the secretary of agriculture or his designee.

The new board member is David A. Bender of Chambersburg, Franklin County. Bender was appointed to fulfill the remaining two years of the term of a former board member who is no longer a potato producer.

Reappointed board members include Keith Masser, of Sacramento, Schuylkill County; Jerry Barnett, of Coudersport, Potter County; and Tom Croner, of Berlin, Somerset County. Each was reappointed to a three-year term.

In addition to these four members, the board includes the following members: Naaman E. King, Atglen, Chester County; Joseph P. Tallman, Tower City, Schuylkill County; E. Gene Kosa, Ulysses, Potter County; James W. Ringler, Berlin, Somerset County; Mark Troyer, Waterford, Westmoreland County; and Seth P. Ballog, Union City, Erie County.

Brosius selected Ana Maria DiStefano, director of the department's Bureau of Market Development, as his designee to the board. Dr. Charles R. Kreuger, associate dean for research at The Pennsylvania State University's College of Agricultural Sciences, is program adviser to the board, and Mike Varner of the Bureau of Market Development serves as the department's liaison to the board.

THINK CONCRETE!!

When planning your storage for high-moisture shelled corn. The light-colored concrete walls protect your valuable grain from the heat like we experienced this summer.

Listen to what these farmers from Virginia say about their switch to a poured concrete silo for their corn storage:

"Even during the hottest summer in our memory, the shelled corn from our poured concrete silo has kept its bright yellow color and has not heated.

We have the best Hi-Moisture shelled corn ever."
Signed: Keith Wilson, Paul Wilson, Gerald Garber; Cave View Farms, Inc., Weyers Cave Va.

"The more you know about silos, the better we look."

Frozen silage? No problem!

For frozen silage and hard-packed haylage, the Patz cutter-and-claw gathering chain outperforms augers. This time-proven chain with its chain-saw cutting action cuts out frozen silage aggressively. Shouldn't your next unloader have a gathering chain?

Consider these Model RD-820 Unloader features:

RING-DRIVE: With the roller-chain ring drive, only one motor powers the machine.
AUTOMATIC LOWERING OPTION: A winch lowers the RD-820 automatically after each complete revolution.
POWER CUTTER: Spring tension keeps high-speed, self-sharpening blades tight to the silo wall to shave it clean.
TORQUE LIMITER: Ratchet-pin design protects the ring and drive system while working through conditions.
Affordable financing directly from Patz.

PORCINE REPRODUCTIVE AND RESPIRATORY SYNDROME (PRRS)

PRRS has been in the U.S. for the past eight years. In that time, it has not generated any sentimental value.

Reproductive failures from PRRS cost $100 to $510 per sow. The respiratory problems associated with PRRS in the growing pig reportedly cost an additional $7.50 to $15 per pig marketed, although many would consider these estimates too low.

The following article is based on numerous published reports as well as observations of several veterinarians — Dr. Robert Graybill, Dr. Jerome Harness, Dr. Larry Hutchinson, and Dr. Timothy Trayer.

Nature Of PRRS

The PRRS virus was identified in Lelystad, Netherlands in 1991, some four years after the disease was first characterized. A short time later, it was also isolated in the U.S. and Germany.

The virus affecting hogs in Europe is essentially the same virus as that found in this country. However, there are different strains, and based on recent studies at Iowa State University, there may be a five-fold difference in virulence among various strains.

Clinical Signs

What the disease looks like will depend upon the disease organisms already present on the farm.

In the reproductive form, PRRS results in 1-4 months of reproductive failure. Sows often go off feed, run a fever (104-106 degrees F), and abort (usually late in pregnancy) or deliver pigs at 105 to 112 days.

Death rates in sows following infection can be high in some herds, according to Dr. Harness. The virus can cross the placenta and infect fetuses, causing an increase in stillborns and mummified pigs. The mummies will be delivered full size early in the course of the disease, and become smaller in the weeks to follow. Once all breeding groups have farrowed, reproductive performance may improve, but it often doesn't because of virus recirculation.

In the respiratory form, the dust-and bacteria-eating macrophages in the lung are destroyed. Because of this, growing pigs often suffer from other diseases.

The most common secondary invaders include Pasteurella, Strep suis, Haemophilus parasuis, hemolytic E. coli, Mycoplasma, Salmonella cholerasuis, Bordatella and Actinobacillus. This stage of the disease often follows the reproductive "storm," but it can also occur without reproductive problems.

Newborn pigs infected with PRRS are weak at birth, become lethargic, take on a rough hair coat, and may suffer from bacterial septicemia and diarrhea. Mortality and cull rates are high, especially in farrow-to-finish enterprises.

Pigs in the finishing phase have mild to moderate respiratory disease, depending on the presence of other respiratory problems.

Transmission

The PRRS virus is extremely infectious. Jeff Zimmerman, a DVM researching PRRS at Iowa State University, suggests that the dose level may approach one virus particle.

Scientists are still uncertain how the virus spreads from pig to pig or farm to farm. Zimmerman reports that fecal shedding is the main way PRRS is spread. He considers nose to nose contact and aerosol transmission secondary (attempts to make the virus spread just 20 feet through the air have failed). However, Dr. Robert Graybill, DVM from Lancaster, Pa., believes the aerosol route is a major factor.

A field study in Germany suggests that airborne transmission is significant up to 1.24 miles. Clearly, the PRRS virus is persistent in the upper respiratory tract, and at least two studies have demonstrated difficulty in isolating virus from manure.

The virus also can be shed in semen for as long as 43 days after infection. A study in Britain indicated PRRS was likely spread to non-infected farms via purchased semen. Researchers at South Dakota State University have shown that gilts can become infected by artificial insemination using unextended semen from experimentally infected boars.

Studies at Iowa State University show that the PRRS virus may affect fertility, and vaccinating boars with the PRRS vaccine may reduce virus shedding in the semen.

Diagnosis

PRRS diagnostic workups should include symptoms in the pig, as well as characteristic lesions in the tissue, virus isolation from tissues or blood, and blood tests to detect the presence of antibodies.

At present, blood samples can be submitted to any of Pennsylvania's animal diagnostic labs (Penn State, Summerdale, or University of Pennsylvania) for the ELISA test. The state labs can also perform virus isolation.

Control

The strategy for controlling PRRS (stopping virus spread) is simple in theory but difficult in practice. Often populations of negative animals exist beside groups of positive animals. If a negative animal picks up the virus, the resulting infection leads to heavy virus shedding and subsequent infection of other "naive" pigs. This phenomenon is especially true in breeding herds that receive replacement gilts every month or so. As a result, the level of immunity never stabilizes and virus shedding persists.

The following cleanup steps are those recommended by Dr. Scott Dee, DVM from Morris, Minn.:

• Step 1. Isolate and vaccinate (under veterinary supervision) incoming gilts. Gilts should be vaccinated upon arrival and isolated off-site. After 30 days, vaccinate again and isolate another 30 days. After this two-month period, gilts can be moved to the breeding herd.

York Farm Credit To Issue Patronage Checks

YORK (York Co.) — Member-borrowers of York Farm Credit will receive patronage refund checks for 1994, it was announced by Jay V. Rush, president.

The patronage refund for borrowers of York Farm Credit will total more than $1.6 million. Borrowers will receive, on average, a rebate of 1.17 percent of the interest Farm Credit earned on their loans in 1994. Twenty-five percent, or $408 thousand, of the refund will be paid in cash. The balance will be placed in allocated surplus in the names of individual member-borrowers.

"York Farm Credit had another successful year in 1994, and we are pleased to be able to share our success with our borrowers," said Lester E. Martin, chairman of the York Farm Credit Board and farmer from Chambersburg. "This is the fifth consecutive year we've paid a patronage refund. Since 1990, York Farm Credit has returned a total of $1.6 million to its member-borrowers through patronage refunds and surplus revolvements."

• Step 2. Stabilize the breeding herd. The objective is to get all animals to the same level of immunity. That means introduction of gilt and boar replacements must stop for 4-5 months. Plan ahead and bring in all replacements that are needed to cover the 4-5 month interval. During that time, monitor the blood titers of specific sows each month. (Dr. Graybill believes that vaccination of the sows will enhance the stabilization of immunity.)

• Step 3. Determine the herd profile. Test 30 sows (be sure to include replacement gilts) and 10 animals from each of the following groups: recently weaned (4 weeks), late nursery (8 weeks), and late finishing (5-6 months). If the herd profile matches the guideline below, you're ready for nursery depopulation: Breeding herd: negative* 4-week-old pigs: negative* 8-10 week-old pigs: 60-100% positive* 5-6 month-old pigs: 25-50 percent positive.

• Step 4. Depopulate the nursery. Once you're certain there is no virus shedding in the breeding herd, the nursery is ready for depopulation. Move all pigs offsite to be finished.

• Step 5. Clean up. Pump the pits and clean nursery with hot water (180 to 200 degrees F). Disinfect with formaldehyde-based product. Allow the wash and disinfectant water to remain in pits overnight. On day 2, pump the pits and repeat the washing and disinfection (this time with phenol-based products). Allow the facility to sit empty from day 3 to 11. On day 12, pump the pits a third time, repeat washing and disinfection (with formaldehyde products). The nursery can be re-filled on day 14. For producers who can't tolerate the 14-day down time, shorter layovers have worked.

In a field study on 34 farms involving 16,000 sows, Dr. Dee has documented improvements in both average daily gain and mortality in the nursery stage. Of the 31 farms with weight gain records, only four showed no improvement in growth rate. Mortality was recorded on all 34 farms, and only two showed no improvement.

Other suggestions, with or without cleanup, that are important when dealing with PRRS:

• Move no pigs between farrowing or nursery rooms. Maintain all-in-all-out at all costs.

• During an outbreak, euthanize all weak newborn pigs and any poor-doing pigs that appear in the farrowing house or nursery. After the outbreak has passed, this practice is questionable.

• Periodically evaluate antibiotic therapy for secondary infections. These treatments may be ineffective.

Vaccine

• Overview — RespPRRS (Trademark) is currently the only commercial vaccine marketed in the U.S. It is produced by NOBL Labs and protects pigs up to 18 weeks of age against the respiratory form of the disease. While the vaccine is used extralabel on sows in some farms, such use must be under veterinary supervision.

Dr. Scott Dee also emphasizes that because diseases such as swine influenza mimic PRRS, a positive diagnosis should be made before vaccine is used. Also, it is not known how well the vaccine will protect pigs against various strains of the virus.

• Safety — Company Tests — The vaccine has been demonstrated safe at vaccine doses far exceeding those listed on the label. In tests conducted by NOBL, previously unexposed pigs that are vaccinated did not transmit the virus to non-infected, non-vaccinated pigs in the same pen. Also, the vaccine virus did not revert to virulence in either colostrum-deprived pigs, or pregnant sows in their third trimester. However, the company states that pregnant gilts and sows should not be vaccinated.

• Effectiveness — Company Tests — In preliminary tests of the product, it was shown that vaccination reduces the level and duration of viremia (virus in the blood) following challenge with field virus. All test-pigs showed an immune response against PRRS within 21 days following vaccination, with most pigs developing antibodies between 8 and 14 days post vaccination. The same tests demonstrated that vaccinated pigs, after challenged with the virus, maintained normal weight gains, body temperatures and white blood counts. In contrast, non-vaccinated pigs had fevers exceeding 104 degrees F for several days, experienced a decrease in white blood count, and had weight gains that were slower than either vaccinates or non-challenged controls.

• Effectiveness — Field Study Results — Two hundred pigs from a 500-sow farm were included in the study. Half the pigs were vaccinated (2 ml IM in the neck at 4 weeks of age, following weaning at 3 weeks of age), while the other half were injected with a sterile diluent. Average daily gain was improved in vaccinated pigs (.73 vs .63 lb/day) as was mortality (0 percent vs 5 percent).

Summary

1. PRRS is a viral disease that causes reproductive problems in sows and respiratory disease in growing pigs.

2. The best strategy for reducing losses associated with PRRS is to stop the transmission from positive to negative pigs.

3. The first step is to be sure that replacement gilts are immunized against the disease before entering the herd so that the immune status is stabilized in the breeding animals. This will improve the likelihood of negative animals entering the farrowing house and improve the chances of producing negative pigs. Once that is accomplished,

Reu-Hel Farms Premier Breeder, Exhibitor Of Southeast Show

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

SUMMIT STATION (Schuylkill Co.) — Reu-Hel Farms, of Mohrsville, was named premier breeder and exhibitor of the 1995 Southeast Pennsylvania District Holstein Championship Show, Thursday, at the Schuylkill County Fairgrounds, near Summit Station.

The 300-acre family farming operation is incorporated by Elwood and Ruth Ohlinger and their daughter and son-in-law Scott and Connie Troutman. They have about 120 registered Holsteins with a rolling herd average of more than 24,000 pounds of milk on twice-day milking.

They also showed the senior and grand champion Holstein, a 4-year-old, CS-Owl-Creek Mark Carey, bred and owned by Scott Troutman out of dam Reu-Hel Farms Ned Boy Caress and sire Walkway Chief Mark.

Judge for the show was James Burdette, of Windy-Knoll-View Farm in Mercersberg. He thanked the exhibitors for the priviledge of judging the show and the quality of animals presented.

The show had been held in past years at the Kutztown Fairgrounds. It was held for the first time this year at the Schuylkill County Fairgounds, a facility that was "very nice" according to exhibitors and show organizer Kenneth Raney, of the Pa. Holstein Association.

The facility had ample parking, good facilities and no outside disruptions. The fairgrounds are located a little off the beaten path, along Rt. 895, near Summit Station.

Showing the reserve senior and grand champion was Joshua Hushon, of Hushon Farms in Delta. His aged cow, 6-year-old C Bernhaven Haywood Lola, was bred by Bernard Ashley out of dam Carvale Hurricane LuLu and sire Shaver Farm Haywood-Reo-ET. She was also the grand champion of the youth division.

Jacob Hushon, also of Delta, showed the open division and youth division junior champion, a winter yearling, Twin-Wind Broker Kiss.

The open division reserve junior champion was a spring yearling, Pennwood Skybuck Holy, bred and owned by Donald and Joanne Stoltzfus.

The youth division junior champion was a winter calf bred and owned Dianne Glock, of Walnut Hills Holsteins. The calf, Walnut Hills IB Beauty, is out of sire Walnut-Hills Inspiration Ben and dam, Walnut-Hills Astro Braroda.

nursery depopulation is the next option. By following these steps, the disease status in numerous herds has been improved. All veterinarians in this state indicate that it's difficult to completely eliminate the virus from the herd. Dr. Trayer mentions that the Dee plan is most successful in herds with 250 sows or less.

4. Beyond these eradication steps, all-in-all-out is vital for maintaining production in a PRRS positive herd.

NFO Opens Internet Home Page

AMES, Iowa — The National Farmers Organization took its first steps into the cyberspace barnyard recently when it opened a home page on Successful Farming magazine's agriculture Online website.

"We feel the organization's presence on the Internet will offer America's farmers and ranchers a 'sell-side' perspective on the agricultural markets," said Steve Halloran, National Farmers president, a cash grain farmer from Hastings, Neb.

"Ag producers are inundated with 'buy-side' marketing information that comes from the buyers' perspectives, not the sellers'. We hope our ag Online information helps to balance market news analysis," he said.

On its home page, National Farmers offers web readers an array of information about the organization, its group marketing and bargaining programs, and its leadership.

Topics in its interactive index include history, size and scope; Capper-Volstead Act; membership requirements, dues, and marketing fees; services to members; media services/communications; national officers and administrators; department directors and program leaders; state presidents and national directors; dairy program; grain program; livestock program; and future direction.

To find National Famers Organization on the Internet, log in to agriculture Online's World Wide Web address: http://www.agriculture.com then look under "World of Agriculture," then under Agricultural Associations. NFO's e-mail address is NFOanetins.net.

Milbro-Empress Wins Supreme Champion At Somerset Show

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

MEYERSDALE (Somerset Co.)—When the grand champions from four breeds of cows returned to the show arena for selection of supreme champion at the Somerset County Junior Dairy Show, it was the opinion of type judge Larry Specht, University Park, that the title was wholly deserved by the Holstein grand champion.

Junior 3-year-old, Milbro-Empress, bred and owned by Kirsten Miller, 16, of Boswell, came up the winner when Specht made the decision. She's a daughter of Mowry KJD Excellence and Quaker Farm Astro Jet Sue Ellen, as well as the best animal bred and owned in the Holstein breed.

The daughter of Mark and Martha Miller and a master showman, Kirsten, in 1993, also had the show's supreme champion.

Ben Miller, her brother, was a pretty strong competitor with Milbro-Lindys Illusion, the Holstein reserve grand champion. Last year his was the supreme champion, so the siblings have been seesawing over the title.

They are members of the Stitch and Squirt 4-H Club and credit good genetics and nutrition for the consistent quality of their dairy animals. And they help each other.

Matthew Moyer's 5-year-old, Saints Silver Candy, was the grand champion in the Jersey breed. Reserve grand champion was Maranatha Marty Iris, owned by Ezra VanTassel.

Both young men are from Friedens. Moyer is 14 and VanTassel is 10. Their parents are Glenn and Evelyn Moyer and Ernest and Kimberly VanTassel.

Joshua VanTassel had the best animal bred and owned in the Jersey breed.

Grand champion Brown Swiss was Four D Heidi Erica, owned by Adam Coleman, aged 13. He is the son of Philip and Lee Ann Coleman of Berlin.

Indian Springs Spice Linda, owned by Sarah Saylor, 10, was the Brown Swiss reserve grand champion. She is the daugther of Richard and Patricia Saylor.

Rebekah Fox, Berlin had the Brown Swiss best animal bred and owned.

Eric Murray, 14, of Salisbury had the grand champion Guernsey animal with Filmors Ednas Elsie. His parents are Timothy and Janet Murray.

Ricki Johnson won grand champion showman by showmanship judge, Carl Bender of Accident, Md.

Penn State, Va. Tech Hatch Joint Program

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.)—Tens of thousands of Pennsylvania school children will have continued opportunities to learn the science of embryology under a joint effort recently hatched by Penn State and Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University.

Under a three-year agreement, Virginia Tech's Department of Animal and Poultry Sciences will provide expertise and educational resources to conduct the 4-H embryology program in classrooms around Pennsylvania. In return, Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences will help Virginia Tech develop cooperative extension educational programming for commercial turkey growers in the Shenandoah Valley.

The agreement will enable both universities to overcome staffing and funding pressures to maintain and enhance successful extension programs.

"The avian egg is the perfect package for a school project," said Virginia Tech extension poultry specialist Phillip Clauer, who is providing leadership for the joint embryology program.

"It's a high-tech lesson in a short time span," he said. "You start with a fertilized egg, and 21 days later you have a chick. In the meantime, students can easily see the developing embryo by candling or shining a light through the egg. Eggs also can be 'windowed,' allowing the kids to see the membranes, sacs, blood vessels and other structures. Besides being educational, it's a lot of fun.

"Embryology is a useful tool for teaching youngsters a variety of scientific and other subjects," said Clauer. "By caring for and hatching eggs, children can learn about fertility, fetal development and the responsibility of caring for living organisms."

County-based cooperative extension professionals typically work with local schools to introduce 4-H embryology in the classroom, and arrange for the incubator and fertilized eggs needed for the program.

"About 54,000 youths participate in embryology projects in Pennsylvania each year," said Ben Nolt, coordinator of Penn State Cooperative Extension's 4-H animal programs. "The program reaches young people from all kinds of backgrounds—urban, suburban, and rural."

Under the agreement, Clauer will work with Penn State faculty and county extension agents to develop, adapt and update materials, such as 4-H member and leader training guides, for use in Pennsylvania. Clauer also will conduct in-service training sessions and help to establish a statewide advisory committee to identify and prioritize program needs.

"In an age of shrinking resources, this kind of joint arrangement is an efficient way of operating," said Nolt. "By sharing and adopting the best of what has worked for others, we can eliminate duplicate efforts and spend more time delivering educational programs.

"We're excited about the possibilities this joint program brings to 4-H embryology in Pennsylvania," Nolt said. "We believe it also could lead to a lot of spin-off benefits for other cooperative extension programs in both states."

Two New Knight ProTwin Heavy Duty V Type Manure Spreaders In Stock At Binkley & Hurst Bros. For Immediate Delivery

Retire Your Current Spreaders!

The 8000 Series ProTwin Slingers can handle a wider range of materials than any other spreader . . .

With the patented twin auger design, material circulates inside the unit This unique action helps keep the load level during normal operation as well as during start-up, fine spreading, and closed-door turns

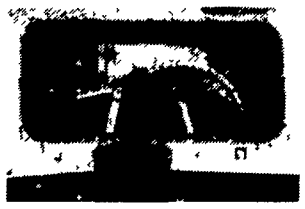
As a result of the twin auger system and the steep angle sides, material bridging and excess forward movement of material are virtually eliminated, even in pen packed and sticky feed lot material

Examine the material flow in the illustration below and note that the left auger moves material forward to the discharge hammers The slightly raised right auger moves the material rearward while keeping the left auger evenly charged with material It is this patented circulating action that makes the ProTwin so effective in handling the toughest material encountered in most applications

Twin Auger Design History

The first ProTwin model, the Industrial 8030 unit, was introduced in the summer of 1993. The total acceptance of the ProTwin Slinger by agricultural and industrial operators in handling the toughest waste material has been phenomenal

Originally, the 8030 ProTwin was targeted for industrial use Today, the same design has been adapted to smaller models to meet the material handling needs of most applications All of these models handle a wide range of materials, from tough pen pack and sticky feed lot material to slurry types of manure, as well as difficult industrial materials



Front Drive Compartment*

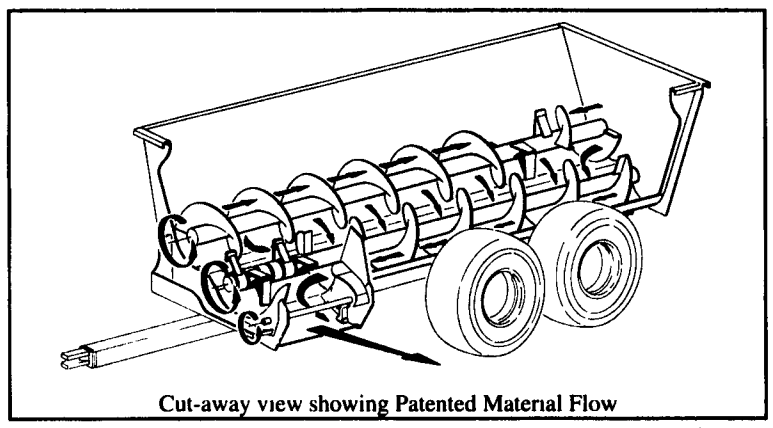
Simple Massive Reduction Drive

Each of the ProTwin models is designed for maximum, high torque output. The fully sealed front oil bath enclosures help assure that chains and sprockets remain clean and well lubricated. The auger and expeller shafts are sealed to help eliminate oil contamination. Polyethylene-type spring loaded chain tighteners are used on all driveline chains for positive alignment and long life Bearings can easily be greased through the external grease banks without removing the front drive shield Splined shafts have been used in all high-torque areas to provide added strength and reliability

PTO Driveline

Constant Velocity PTO with Overload Clutch

Both 540 and 1000 RPM drivelines incorporate a constant velocity joint to provide a smooth transfer of power from the tractor to the unit. This relieves uneven stress on the drive train during normal turns and during operation over uneven terrain. The overload clutch provides protection for the expeller shaft and initial drive components. (There is no shear pin in the expeller drive).



Cut-away view showing Patented Material Flow

Forged-Steel Hammer

Each hammer has a nylon bushing and a replaceable manganese steel wear plate

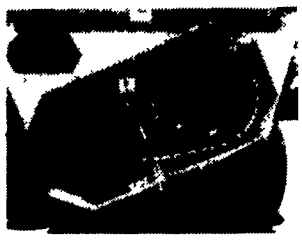
Hammer Discharge

Patented Free Swinging Hammer Expeller

The expeller on all ProTwin models features 15 forged steel hammers mounted on a 2½" shaft. The hammers pivot on ⅝" bolts with nylon anti-seize type bushings that allow free movement. The expeller rotates at over 800 RPM allowing each eight pound hammer to swing down into the material, peeling it off and slinging it underhand in a fine spread pattern with no clumps. The 3" wide, free swinging hammers absorb shock and tolerate most foreign objects Each hammer is faced with a work-hardening manganese steel wear plate for longer life and low cost replacement. The adjustable shroud allows easy hammer clearance setting for optimum spread pattern width This proven hammer expeller design enables fine spreading control and material calibration through the combination of the hydraulic door opening and ground speed.



Rear Drive Compartment*

The right auger is driven at the rear and is shear pin protected. Bearings, chains and sprockets are easily accessible for routine maintenance.

*Shields removed for illustration only
Do not operate without shields in place and functioning.*

Mayrath introduces the all new "InLine Drive" series of portable grain augers. Mayrath has combined operational efficiency with long term dependability providing you with a high quality, GALVANIZED auger at a very affordable price. 48 HP* MASSEY FERGUSON 253

Tractor everyone can afford.

It's easy to see why the MF 253 has become known as the best bargain in the market. With the high-torque backup from its 48 hp* Perkins engine, it outworks tractors many horses larger. And uses less fuel than tractors with far fewer horses.

Plus it delivers the unequaled implement control of an advanced Ferguson hydraulics system.

And, of course there's our outstanding prices and service support. Stop in for a great deal today.

Mixing T.M.R. The Way You Want

Open-Top Mixers
Four notched augers mix fast--even square-baled dry alfalfa in limited amounts.
Self-aligning auger bearings mounted outside. Flanged auger tubes for easy removal.
Planetary gear reducers and roller chain reduction power the augers. Roller chains operate in enclosed oil bath.
On trailer and truck models, the discharge door and discharge augers are controlled hydraulically. Also, gravity discharge is available.
8 sizes from 190 to 575 cubic feet.

CLAAS Forage Harvesters

CLAAS corn headers have a tremendous reputation around the world, thanks to their speedy harvesting in all conditions.

This high performance JAGUAR self propelled forager range can be equipped according to machine size with 5, 6 and 8 row maize headers.

Corn headers have to cope with extremely tough conditions. CLAAS headers feature weare resistant chains, automatic tensioning, plastic coated chain guides and ground, hardened rollers to ensure reliability, long life and low maintenance.

When you use the CLAAS Autopilot in corn, the sensors follow the rows closely above the ground, and the JAGUAR steers dependably along the line. When reversing, the sensors swing forward and then reset automatically. The CLAAS Autopilot is invaluable in weed infested, hanging or laid crops, at night or in misty conditions.

The cutting discs are pretensioned to work with optimal pressure. They're self sharpening and maintenance free
